

MELLON A BARRIER TO ENFORCING DRY LAW, SAYS PINCHOT

Former Governor Holds President Is Likewise Chiefly to Blame.

GOVERNMENT IS SEEN TALKING, NOT ACTING

Wayne Wheeler, Calling Bootlegger a Traitor, Would Outlaw Them All.

Winona Lake, Ind., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Gifford Pinchot, former Governor of Pennsylvania, addressing the congress of the World League Against Alcoholism tonight, assailed Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, as being the "chief obstacle to complete enforcement of Federal prohibition in the United States."

"Back of him and therefore chiefly responsible, is President Coolidge, the speaker declared. Much of the former governor's address was devoted to a resumption of his attack on Secretary Mellon, whom he charged with refusing to have the prohibition law enforced.

"For many reasons Secretary Mellon is utterly unfit to have charge of the enforcement of the eighteenth amendment," Mr. Pinchot declared. "First, he is wet. When appointed as Secretary of the Treasury Mellon was, if not the largest, one of the largest makers of whisky in America. Both because of his personal views and his business interests he was just the wrong man to enforce the law. The result has proved it.

Talks Dry, He Says.

"The trouble with the Coolidge administration is that it has talked in favor of the dry but acted in favor of the wet. President Coolidge personally obeys the law. He has, it is true, said in messages to Congress that the law ought to be observed and enforced. He did, it is true, call a conference of governors on law enforcement, the result of which was utterly nothing. I was there and I know.

"Under the Coolidge administration there has been dry talk enough to keep the drys contented—most of them—but not dry action enough to keep the wets from getting all the drink they wanted."

Lays All to Mellon.

"After relating his experiences as Governor of Pennsylvania, Mr. Pinchot declared emphatically that prohibition can be enforced.

"My four years of struggle to make Pennsylvania dry proved that what is needed to enforce the law is just one thing—a determination to see that the law is enforced," he said. "My chief obstacle was the Federal Government at Washington. The thing which hampered me beyond all else was the refusal of Andrew Mellon to have the law enforced.

"When the eighteenth amendment was first passed crime, power and drink steadily declined until Secretary Mellon came into office. The present enormous development of bootlegging has taken place entirely under Mellon's administration. If he had done his duty it never would have taken place at all.

"I call upon President Coolidge to put the whole power and influence of his office vigorously behind the Constitution and thus cure a cancer that carries infection to every part of our country—a cancer which the President and the President alone can cure.

Prohibition statutes in America are not only right, but enforceable, declared Dr. Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel and legislative superintendent of the Antisocial League of America in another address.

"Where national prohibition enforcement has failed in the United States," Dr. Wheeler said, "that failure is largely due to the appointment or election of men who were opposed to the law or who publicly declared that they did not believe it could be enforced. Some of these wet officials enforce the law, if at all, in a way to make enemies to it.

"A prohibition law will not be enforced if its friends demoralize America has cast out the saloon, but the bootlegger, moonshiner and rum-runner must not be allowed to return in force. The moral forces of the Nation must array themselves for a greater conflict now than in the fight for adoption.

Fewer Changes Needed.

"One need is fewer changes in enforcement administration methods. Since national prohibition went into effect, there have been four different programs.

"The permissive features of the law and the control of nonbeverage liquors make necessary establishment of an administrative bureau of prohibition. The general amnesty, offered to the small bootlegger by some Federal officers who declared they would prosecute only larger offenders, is one of the most dangerous invitations to crime. The distinction drawn is as false as to suggest that only whole-sale murderers shall be punished or that embezzlements over $10,000 shall be penalized.

"As long as a liquor criminal continues to violate law after his first conviction, no sympathy should be wasted on him. A bootlegger is neither a good citizen nor a good sport. He is a traitor to his country, a leech on society, a poisoner and assassin of his fellow men. The man who buys from him also violates the law.

"The time has come to stop coddling these criminals and treat them as conspirators against the Government. Liquor outlaws and enemies of the Republic."

Coolidge's Slight Cold Keeps Him From Church

Rapid City, S. Dak., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—President Coolidge suffered a slight indisposition which kept him from church service.

A slight cold kept the President in bed in the morning. He was able to arise for the noon meal, however.

A long fishing trip in the hot sun yesterday also played a part, it is understood, in the President's indisposition. This is the first time he has missed church service since coming here.

Mrs. Coolidge and John, however, attended the service at the Hermosa Congregational Church.

PRESIDENT IS GUARDED IN TRIP TO YELLOWSTONE

Every Railroad Switch Is Spiked and Protected; Police Reinforced.

IS HAPPY OVER VACATION

By CARLISLE BARGERON (Staff Correspondent of The Post.)

Aboard Presidential Train, Edgemont, S. Dak., Aug. 21.—President Coolidge was headed tonight for the scenic wonders of Yellowstone National Park and looking forward to them with the anticipation of a small boy. He drove over from the lodge and took the train at Custer, the first time he has been on a real "presidential" train since he left Washington last June.

On the comparatively short trip he has taken from the lodge, only one club car has been furnished and the rest of the train would be made up of second-class equipment. But tonight the White House was again on wheels, this time being moved by the Burlington, and the Chief Executive had virtually his entire "summer" official family with him, his military aide, Col. Blanton Winship, his personal physician, Maj. James P. Couper, and his executive secretary, Everett Sanders. Mrs. E. T. Clark, wife of his personal secretary, did not take the trip, but left Rapid City for Washington about the same time the presidential party was leaving Custer, and Mr. Clark remained in Rapid City.

Unusual precautions were taken for the safety of the trip because of the Sacco-Vanzetti disturbance. The Secret Service guard was reinforced and the railroad had a corps of special agents. A pilot engine with Secret Service men and special agents moved ahead. Every switch along the line was spiked down and guarded by an agent.

Hundreds of residents of Rapid City, who have come to look upon the Coolidges as of them, motored 50 miles to Custer to see the President's away. These together with the people of Custer made it quite a send-off.

"The Washington correspondents who have accompanied him motored from Rapid City to the lodge and were photographed on the train."

Oath Still Is Dividing Irish, De Valera Says

Dublin, Ireland, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Addressing a Republican meeting tonight, Eamon de Valera declared that the oath of allegiance still was the barrier which kept the Irish in Ireland divided.

"To remove it," he said, "must be the first of the immediate objectives of the Fianna Fail in the future, as in the past. If we get in power it will go without delay, and with it the public service is made a prerequisite of a party."

Ford Shops Bombed In Argentine City

Cordoba, Argentina, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—A powerful bomb exploded at the Ford shops here this morning, doing much damage. The walls were blown out in some places and neighboring houses were partly wrecked. Scores of residents rushed into the streets.

It is thought that the bomb outrage was connected with the protests against the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti.

TWO PERSONS BURNED AS CLOTHING IGNITES

Woman Injured While Cooking Dinner; Man Hurt by Fire From Trash.

Mrs. Gertrude Tait, 30 years old, of 1828 Eighth street northwest, was seriously burned yesterday, when her clothing became ignited as she was preparing dinner. The dress, hospital physicians said, had been cleaned recently with an inflammable fluid which is believed to have attracted the flames. She was treated at Emergency Hospital, and her recovery is expected.

John R. Stephens, 15 years old, 1512 Lamont street northwest, was in Garfield Hospital suffering from burns on the back and legs. He was burning trash in the rear of his home when his clothing became ignited.

Ship, Caught by Gale, Issues Call for Help

Bordeaux, France, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—The Danish steamer Cyril, in distress in the Bay of Biscay, sent out a wireless call tonight for immediate assistance. The steamer reported a heavy gale blowing and high sea running.

FAR-FLUNG SEARCH FOR PACIFIC FLIERS BRINGS NO RESULT

Submarines, Airplanes and Destroyers Comb Seas for Seven.

WIFE OF CAPT. ERWIN COLLAPSES IN GRIEF

Aviator's Mother, However, Refuses to Give Up Hope for Son.

San Francisco, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—The vast Pacific Ocean continued today to hold fast the fate of the seven who dared to fly over its thousands of miles of water from the shores of California to the Islands of Hawaii.

Despite all the resources of the Navy, the Army, the scores of steamships plying the great, swelling sea, and the hopes and prayers of relatives, friends and the world that pays tribute to brave effort, there was no word to indicate whether the ocean had claimed them or they were still aloft, waiting for rescue.

Five days had passed since the Golden Eagle and the Miss Doran, bearing their four courageous men and one woman, had roared away from the crowded Oakland airport that cheered them to win glory and the prizes offered by James D. Dole for the first and second planes to cross 2,400 miles of the Pacific.

No Word Received.

Nor was anything heard from Pilot Jack Frost and Navigator Gordon Scott, of Los Angeles, of the Golden Eagle, nor from Miss Mildred Doran, the beautiful young school teacher who bravely shared the dangers of John Auggy Pedlar and Lieut. V. R. Knope, who piloted and navigated the plane named in her honor.

Two days had gone by since Capt. William P. Erwin, of Dallas, Tex., with the courage that laughed in the face of death, flew out to sea to search the waves along the whole route to Honolulu for traces of those who had preceded them. From their plane, the Dallas Spirit, they radioed the gay messages to friends and the jests of men going light-heartedly on a great adventure. And then through the 600 miles of air came their S. O. S. piercing the night over the ocean. It was at 9:02 p. m., Friday:

"We are in a tail spin—S O S—We came out of it, but were sure scared. It was a close call. We thought it was all off, but we came out of it. The lights on the instrument board went out, and it was so dark that Bill couldn't see the—we are in another S O S—"

Last Signal of Erwin.

That was the last heard from Erwin and Eichwald—Erwin, holder of the distinguished service medal for heroic service for his country in France during the War of Nations, and Eichwald, a member of the Navy.

Posse Seeks Slayer Of Southern Sheriff

Bunnell, Fla., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—A posse of approximately 200 men tonight was searching in the vicinity of Roy, near here, for an unidentified negro who early today fatally injured Sheriff Perry Hall, of Flagler County, by striking him over the head with a bottle. The officer died of a fractured skull in a St. Augustine hospital this afternoon without regaining consciousness. Sheriff Hall, said reports received here, was attacked by the negro after he had entered a building at Roy in which several negroes were alleged to have been staging a drinking party. An unidentified suspect was under arrest tonight in connection with the case.

Geronimo, Bold Chief, To Have Monument

Hollywood, Calif., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Geronimo, the Apache Indian chief who surrendered to Gen. Nelson A. Miles in 1886 after four years' struggle with the white invaders of Arizona, is to live again in statuary.

The Indian Ethnographic Society today announced plans to erect a monument to the valliant red warrior near Skeleton Canyon, Ariz., where the surrender took place. Charles Wakefield Cadman, noted composer, has interested himself in the plans for the monument, which will be an equestrian figure.

Geronimo died at Fort Sill, Okla., in 1909.

On Way to Wedding, Killed Beside Fiancee

Lafayette, Ind., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—R. G. Helbron, 40, of Little Rock, Ark., and Joseph Keys, 21, of near Coffey, Ind., were killed almost instantly today in an automobile collision at a road intersection. Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Clark, of Louisville, Ky., and Miss Anne Cohen, also of Louisville, were seriously hurt, as were Lloyd Fisher and Herman Riley, both living near Coffey.

According to Mrs. Clark they were en route to Crown Point, Ind., where Miss Cohen and Helbron were to be married, tonight.

SAILOR OF C.M.T.C. BOAT DROWNS AT RIVER WHARF

Students, Diving 40 Minutes, Fail to Recover Body From Channel.

HAD HIT HEAD IN PLUNGE

Despite heroic efforts of several young citizens military training camp students Millard Thorne, 16-year-old sailor on the United States Army steamer Gen. D. H. Rucker, drowned in the Washington channel at the wharf of the Washington Barracks yesterday shortly after 5 p. m.

Thorne, who lived at Broad Creek, Md., slipped when he leaped across a 3-foot stretch of water to board the boat as it was drawing away from the wharf with 175 citizens military training camp students en route to their camp at Port Washington. His head struck the side of the boat and he sank below the surface of the water without a struggle.

Several of the students who saw Thorne disappear stripped off their uniforms and, disregarding the whirling propeller of the steamer and the treacherous currents near the wharf, dived after him. The channel is approximately 30 feet deep near the wharf.

Capt. W. W. Rowles, commanding the steamer, ordered the engines stopped while the students were diving for Thorne's body. The Fire Department rescue squad was summoned and while fellow workers were assembling a pump-motor, Private L. C. Kengle dived in.

The C. M. T. C. youths and Kengle dived for more than 40 minutes, but were unable to locate the body. Capt. Rowles then announced that the boat was going to leave and ordered the divers aboard. Among them were Paul Hesse, 17 years old, of Pittsburgh; Kenneth Nash, 20, of Dairy, Pa., and George Navish, 20.

Police from the Harbor Precinct dragged the channel near the wharf until darkness, but were unable to find Thorne's body. They will resume the search today.

Thorne had been employed on the General Rucker since July 1. It was one of his duties to put away the ship plank and then leap aboard the ship as it left its moorings.

The General Rucker docked at the Washington Barracks wharf in the morning and the C. M. T. C. students were given leave to see this city. The boat was supposed to leave the wharf at 5 o'clock.

Great Siberian Flood, Killing 100, Receding

Vladivostok, Siberia, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—The flood waters, which began sweeping the maritime province during the last week, are gradually receding. Losses caused by the flood are estimated at 15,000,000 rubles.

A dispatch last Thursday from Vladivostok reported 40,000 peasants deprived of shelter and 100 drowned in a great flood that followed a steady downpour of eighteen hours. Theuseur, Bikin and Suchan Rivers overflowed their banks. The trans-Siberian Railway was reported damaged and sixteen bridges destroyed.

3 DIE BY TYPHOON; SHIP IS IN DISTRESS

Hongkong, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Two children and a man were killed and five persons seriously injured at Samshui, where a house collapsed during a typhoon. The military camp at Samshui stood the storm well and reported no damage. Shipping was hurt only little, but in Kowloon Bay the British steamer ship Rawalpindi had to be assisted by a government rescue tug.

The greatest velocity of the wind was 115 miles an hour. The rainfall for twelve hours was 4.16 inches.

The British steamship Rawalpindi left London June 17 for Kobe and arrived at the latter port July 30. It was on the return trip when caught in the storm.

Strap on Parachute Hurls Man 1,000 Feet

Leipzig, Germany, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Anton Merselbach, noted parachute jumper, was killed today in a leap with a parachute of his own construction. A leather strap broke, precipitating him from an altitude of 1,000 feet.

EXPLORER, TRAPPED 5 DAYS IN CAVERN, DIGS HIMSELF OUT

SLEEPS AS PRISONER AFTER TIRING WALK

Geologist, Near Exhaustion, Finds Water and Fights Wildcat With Shovel.

Special to The Washington Post.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Aug. 21.—Digging his way out with a small Army shovel, which he always carried on his trips, L. S. Ashley, Nicka-Jack cave guide and geologist, returned today from a virtually given him up as dead, this morning at 9:30 o'clock.

Ashley told a story of being imprisoned in a cave of loose dirt, of wandering for two days in search of water for his guide lamp and of finally finding his way out through a small opening before known to exist. He went into the cavern Monday morning when he emerged some time later, he returned to Nashville.

Early this morning, he estimated that he had covered 70 miles. Ashley's story was doubted only by O. P. Pile, chief State mine inspector, who hadn't relished the idea of going into the cave for a lost explorer in this morning.

When he saw Ashley the existence of the unknown cave and told the geologist he would have to be shown. Ashley told Pile that he hadn't sent for him in the first place, and that if he had anything to do with it he would have trusted the search to the natives. He said he would be glad to take the inspector to the cave as he has rested a bit from his grueling experiences.

Little Water in Cavern.

As had been generally thought, Ashley went into the cavern last Monday to explore the secret cavern which he had discovered a few weeks ago.

"That was my last trip," he told this correspondent. "I should have left it alone because it has little water and is too hard to get into to ever be of any use for tourists."

"I had plenty of food to last a week or so, but I always kept a little hidden away here and there. I also had another lamp, in addition to the ones I found, and a big can of carbide. My only trouble was finding plenty of water."

"I had come to a steep descent, probably 70 feet, being equipped with a heavy pack, and, having trouble seeing, I thought to place a candle on a rock to light me down. I clambered up to get to the ledge and started a slide of loose earth. I went down with a roar like thunder and completely filled the cavern."

BOY CARRIED A MILE IN SEWER TO RIVER

Firemen, in Boat, Seize Lad as He Emerges After Exciting Chase.

New York, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—An 8-year-old boy fell into a manhole in a building on the East Side today, was carried through the city's sewers and was washed out alive into the East River, where he was rescued by firemen at police.

"It was dark and cold in there, though," the boy remarked, as he neared the rescue. He was not injured. He was taken to Bellevue Hospital for treatment.

The boy, Anthony D. Gosling, and a number of playmates were in the cave in Flushing, where they were playing when the boy fell into the manhole. His companions gave the alarm and the 45-minute search by police and firemen was called out.

Firemen were lowered into the manhole along the line of the sewer, but in each case they were unable to reach the boy. Other firemen tried to reach the boy from the surface, but the outlet in the East River. Five minutes after they took up their post at the river, the boy was washed out.

Couple Found Dead After Reconciliation

Special to The Washington Post.

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 21.—Something went wrong with John J. Sacco's reconciliation Saturday with his wife, from whom he had been separated seven years. They had taken a room at Mrs. Mary O'Neill's home on Lee street, and all seemed well between them last night. This morning the landlady's dog indicated to her that something was amiss.

The forced door revealed the bodies of Sacco and his wife, a 24-year-old nurse, both having died from wounds inflicted with a razor for blade.

Acting Attorney General Says Secret Data Show No Collusion in Case.

(Associated Press.)

Announcement by the Department of Justice yesterday that its files would be opened to high Massachusetts authorities should inspection be requested in connection with the Sacco-Vanzetti case was followed immediately by an appeal by representatives of the condemned men that the Lowell committee undertake such an examination.

At the same time a telegram was sent to Gov. Fuller requesting a stay of execution to permit inspection of the Government records. The wire to the Massachusetts executive was signed by Arthur Garfield Hays, of New York, and Francis Fisher Kane, of Philadelphia, who earlier in the day had conferred for several hours with Acting Attorney General Farnum.

Hays and Kane likewise made public a telegram which, they said, had been sent to President Coolidge at the summer White House in South Dakota after the two had discussed the case with Attorney General Sargent at his home in Vermont.

Urges Coolidge to Act.

The wire to Mr. Coolidge urged that the Government files relating to the case be opened before the men were executed, adding that "it seems to us the honor of our country would be irreparably sullied if these men are put to death when millions of people sincerely believe that important evidence is kept secret by the Government."

During the day counsel for Sacco and Vanzetti obtained over the telephone addresses of all justices within a day's reach of Boston. The summer address of Chief Justice Taft, on vacation at Murray Bay, Quebec, was said to have been requested in particular.

Meanwhile, today it is expected a record of the case will be filed with the clerk of the Supreme Court, completing an effort initiated last week to have the high tribunal review the proceedings in the Norfolk County Superior Court of Massachusetts, where the men were tried and convicted, and also the action of the State Supreme Court in refusing to review the case on its merits.

Michael A. Musmanno, one of the defense counsel, Saturday appeared before the clerk of the United States Supreme Court to file petitions, but was advised a record of the case also would be necessary. He said this would be for-

Alleged Swindler Now Called Taxi Slayer

Denver, Colo., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Harry Carter, alleged to have perpetrated swindles amounting to $200,000 in value a hundred cities, today was positively identified as George C. McDonald, sought for the murder of a taxicab driver in Huntington, Quebec, July 17. Chief of Police Reed announced.

Carter was returned to Denver yesterday from Butte, Mont., to face back check charges and confessed check forgeries amounting to $50,000 in many cities.

Police said investigation revealed Carter or McDonald is a Canadian subject.

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Aug. 21.—A young woman was killed and her younger sister and parents severely injured when the automobile in which they were riding was in collision with a train going from here to Washington, at Timberville, near here, about 4 o'clock this afternoon. The injured were brought here to the hospital.

Miss Zelma Lohr, 18 years old, was almost instantly killed. Her 9-year-old sister, Dorothy, was so severely injured about the head and body that at a late hour she died.

Senator Borah Promises To Go Over Sacco Case

Boston, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Senator William M. Borah has telegraphed the citizens national committee for Sacco and Vanzetti that he "would be glad to go over the case with counsel," the defense organization announced tonight. The telegram address: "If I find I can be of service relative to innocence or fair trial, will volunteer my time and services."

The citizens national committee and the Sacco-Vanzetti defense committee immediately invited the Senator to proceed to Boston, and begin tentative arrangements for airplane transportation to speed his arrival. The committee also urged the Senator to request Gov. Fuller to stay execution until his arrival.

Senator Borah's message came from Spokane, Wash., the defense committee said.

SACCO IN GOOD SPIRITS AS VANZETTI PAGES CELL

Condemned Men Go to Bed, Knowing That Today May Be Their Last.

BOTH EAT CHICKEN DINNER

Charlestown State Prison, Boston, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti went to bed in their cells in the death house tonight with the knowledge that tomorrow may be their last day of life. Sacco has renewed hope that his life may be saved; Vanzetti is silent and restless, according to Michael A. Musmanno, defense attorney, who visited the men in their cells today.

The two men, who with Celestino Madeiros, are scheduled to be electrocuted some time after midnight tomorrow, passed what may be their last Sunday on earth quietly. They received, in addition to Musmanno's visit, two visits from Mrs. Rose Sacco and Miss Luigia Vanzetti. Sacco's wife and Vanzetti's sister spent an hour in the death house on their morning visit and about the same length of time in the afternoon.

The condemned men were served with a roast chicken dinner and all three ate heartily. Managing as well as they could with the spoons that are the only eating utensils provided them. The food, prepared especially in the prison hospital kitchen, was brought to the death house in an aluminum container.

Bullet in Her Heart, Kills Wealthy Girl

Santa Barbara, Calif., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Cornelia Van Rensselaer Erving, 18 years old, was found dead in the front yard of her father's Minto estate this morning with a .32 caliber revolver at her side.

The girl was preparing to go on a hunting trip with her father, J. Langdon Erving, wealthy retired New Yorker, and had asked him to teach her to shoot. When her father went to the garage this morning she obtained her revolver. Mr. Erving found her 15 minutes later with a bullet wound through her heart. According to Coroner E. G. Dodge, the shooting was accidental.

Girl to Fly to Paris From Wheeling Field

Wheeling, W. Va., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Tentative plans for a transatlantic flight from Wheeling Airport to Paris were made public today by J. D. Hollaway, banker and broker, and J. D. Meriman, broker, who said they were spokesmen for the backers of the venture.

The flight is to be made late in September, they said, by Miss Ruth Elder, Lakeland, Fla., aviatrix, who will pilot a specially built Stinson monoplane. She will be accompanied by George W. Haldeman, veteran pilot and navigator.

EAST WIND AND FOG ALONG COAST HALT OLD GLORY'S FLIGHT

Crowds Wait in Vain About Hangar, but Plane Is Not Taken Out.

REDFERN WILL START FOR BRAZIL TOMORROW

Fliers on Other Side of the Atlantic Kept Down by Bad Weather.

Curtis Field, N. Y., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—The Redfern monoplane Old Glory stayed in its hangar all day today while its pilots, Lloyd W. Redfern and James D. Hill, waited vainly for a west wind strong enough to help lift the heavily-laden plane into the air for the proposed New York-to-Rome non-stop flight.

A slight east wind blowing under overcast skies was all the weather man had to offer the fliers, who have announced that only favorable weather is needed to send them on their way now that the last test has been made. Coupled with the local weather conditions which prevented a start was the report of the United States Weather Bureau that cloudy skies and fog prevailed today over the north Atlantic coast from New York to Cape Race, N. F., with storms of rain and fog over the east Atlantic. Between the fog-shrouded American coast and the storm area off Ireland the weather was reported. These conditions were expected to continue tomorrow, the Weather Bureau reports.

Up to the time of President Coolidge's withdrawal from the race, San Francisco was understood to have been tentatively assured that it would get the Republican nomination. The fact that Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, a probable candidate for the presidential nomination, resides in California may have changed the situation somewhat, although such influential Republicans as Senator Watson of Indiana, still believe the convention will be held in the Pacific Coast city.

Various reports have the California delegation, among them being the status of the feud between Senator Johnson (Republican) of California, and Secretary Hoover. Reports are current that a truce between Senator Johnson and the Coolidge-Hoover forces is in the making.

Senator Johnson is a candidate for reelection to the Senate next year. His friends believe he can be reelected without serious difficulty regardless of whether or not he interposes objection to the selection of a Hoover delegate to the national convention from California. Therefore, it is presumed that Senator Johnson, as a condition for his support of the Hoover delegates and for giving his full support to the Republican national ticket in the election, can demand something more than his own re-election and reelection.

Dam Aid Suggested. The terms said to have been suggested by Senator Johnson include active work by the Coolidge administration for the Boulder dam project and the selection of San Francisco as the place for holding the Republican convention. President Coolidge and members of his cabinet, including Secretary Hoover, have favored the Boulder dam project heretofore, but Senator Johnson has thought that the administration might have delivered enough Eastern votes to have put the dam project on the agenda of the Congress if its influence had been exerted to the fullest extent.

If Senator Johnson were actively stirring up discord in California the Republican national committee would be inclined to arrange for the holding of the convention elsewhere. The patching up of a truce may win the convention for San Francisco in spite of the prejudice against the city which has been expressed by the choice of a city where there is a favorite son candidate.

There is a general understanding that the delegates to the convention held in the West where the greatest number of delegates are expected to be elected, have been in evidence. If San Francisco is not the favored city there is a strong likelihood that Kansas City will be chosen.

Chicago Out of Race. In Chicago, where many Republican conventions have been held in the past, it is said to be definitely out of the running because of complications which would be caused by the holding of the convention in a city where there is no intention of going within range of demonstrations which might be staged by or on behalf of Mayor William H. Thompson.

Detroit and Cleveland are actively seeking the Republican convention, and St. Louis and two or three other cities also are counted in the race. The greatest uncertainty prevails as to where the convention will be held. The New York, where the bitter controversy between the Smith and McAdoo cohorts and the Coolidge-Hoover forces has been considered this time.

Cleveland, where the last Republican convention was held, may get the Democratic nomination. Detroit also is a contender to have a chance. Washington, Chicago and St. Louis have been suggested. Selection of the convention city will be made by the national committee of the two parties at meetings scheduled to take place in Washington early in the winter.

Bowles' Horse Killed Falling Into Ditch. A George Bowles, 3715 Porter street northwest, vice president and cashier of the Potomac Savings Bank, was shaken up and his horse killed yesterday afternoon when the horse fell into a ditch concealed by high grass.

The accident occurred on Bradley road, a mile and a half from the District line. Mr. Bowles was riding with friends at the time of the accident. He did not realize that a deep ditch flanked the road at the point and drove his horse over the highway into the grass. He was thrown from the horse. The horse's leg caught in a vein in the ditch's edge causing it to bleed to death.

CITIES KEEN RIVALS IN RACE TO BE HOSTS TO 1928 CONVENTIONS

San Francisco's Chances Impaired by Feud Between Johnson and Hoover.

Assurance of lively scenes in the national conventions of both parties promises to give impetus to the rivalry among the cities which are vying for the privilege of entertaining them.

Up to the time of President Coolidge's withdrawal from the race, San Francisco was understood to have been tentatively assured that it would get the Republican nomination. The fact that Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, a probable candidate for the presidential nomination, resides in California may have changed the situation somewhat, although such influential Republicans as Senator Watson of Indiana, still believe the convention will be held in the Pacific Coast city.

Various reports have the California delegation, among them being the status of the feud between Senator Johnson (Republican) of California, and Secretary Hoover. Reports are current that a truce between Senator Johnson and the Coolidge-Hoover forces is in the making.

Senator Johnson is a candidate for reelection to the Senate next year. His friends believe he can be reelected without serious difficulty regardless of whether or not he interposes objection to the selection of a Hoover delegate to the national convention from California. Therefore, it is presumed that Senator Johnson, as a condition for his support of the Hoover delegates and for giving his full support to the Republican national ticket in the election, can demand something more than his own re-election and reelection.

Dam Aid Suggested. The terms said to have been suggested by Senator Johnson include active work by the Coolidge administration for the Boulder dam project and the selection of San Francisco as the place for holding the Republican convention. President Coolidge and members of his cabinet, including Secretary Hoover, have favored the Boulder dam project heretofore, but Senator Johnson has thought that the administration might have delivered enough Eastern votes to have put the dam project on the agenda of the Congress if its influence had been exerted to the fullest extent.

If Senator Johnson were actively stirring up discord in California the Republican national committee would be inclined to arrange for the holding of the convention elsewhere. The patching up of a truce may win the convention for San Francisco in spite of the prejudice against the city which has been expressed by the choice of a city where there is a favorite son candidate.

There is a general understanding that the delegates to the convention held in the West where the greatest number of delegates are expected to be elected, have been in evidence. If San Francisco is not the favored city there is a strong likelihood that Kansas City will be chosen.

Chicago Out of Race. In Chicago, where many Republican conventions have been held in the past, it is said to be definitely out of the running because of complications which would be caused by the holding of the convention in a city where there is no intention of going within range of demonstrations which might be staged by or on behalf of Mayor William H. Thompson.

Detroit and Cleveland are actively seeking the Republican convention, and St. Louis and two or three other cities also are counted in the race. The greatest uncertainty prevails as to where the convention will be held. The New York, where the bitter controversy between the Smith and McAdoo cohorts and the Coolidge-Hoover forces has been considered this time.

Cleveland, where the last Republican convention was held, may get the Democratic nomination. Detroit also is a contender to have a chance. Washington, Chicago and St. Louis have been suggested. Selection of the convention city will be made by the national committee of the two parties at meetings scheduled to take place in Washington early in the winter.

Bowles' Horse Killed Falling Into Ditch. A George Bowles, 3715 Porter street northwest, vice president and cashier of the Potomac Savings Bank, was shaken up and his horse killed yesterday afternoon when the horse fell into a ditch concealed by high grass.

The accident occurred on Bradley road, a mile and a half from the District line. Mr. Bowles was riding with friends at the time of the accident. He did not realize that a deep ditch flanked the road at the point and drove his horse over the highway into the grass. He was thrown from the horse. The horse's leg caught in a vein in the ditch's edge causing it to bleed to death.

graphed with the President as a preliminary to perfecting some sort of a veterans' organization.

The President will stop at Billings, Mont., tomorrow morning about 8 o'clock and ride through the town to the city hall where he will be greeted by the mayor, Gov. E. B. Egan, and members of the State's congressional delegation.

Gardiner, Mont., the entrance to the park, will be reached shortly after 1 o'clock tomorrow. There the party will get into automobiles and go 8 miles into Wyoming and the park. There is considerable uncertainty if not secrecy as to plans of the President once he enters the park.

I am believed to be his desire to get away as much as possible from the newspaper men and have a real vacation. It is understood that he will spend the first night at Mammoth Hotel, the first or inside the park. The following night, it is believed, will find him at the Old Faithful, some 50 miles away, and the third night perhaps will be at Lake Park.

FAR-FLUNG SEARCH IN PACIFIC FAILS TO FIND DOLE FLIERS

the young navigator, whose hand on the telephone key sent the messages that will show others how to die to aid their fellow men.

Scores of ships of the Navy continued today to plow the sea in the search for the brave fliers. The liners parting the waves between the mainland and the islands maintained their ceaseless vigil. Out from the Golden Gate, the Hawaiian coast, the searchers worked with those catapulted from the decks of the airplane carriers Langley and Aroostook, and far out in the Pacific other Army and Navy planes spread their wings over the waters of Hawaii.

Human agency could do, was done—will be done.

But whether those sought rode the waves of the Pacific or were rolled over them, was not known.

Five Men, Charged With Assault on Couple, to Be Tried at Upper Marlboro.

Five colored men will go on trial at Upper Marlboro this morning on charges of a capital offense in connection with the assault on Miss Albertina Smith, 1422 N. Street northwest, and John Buckler, of 3345 Prospect avenue, about two months ago on the Oxon Hill road.

The men, who are indicted on charges of assault with intent to kill, and with two offenses against Miss Smith, are Herman Proctor, of 3345 Prospect avenue, and Richard Brown, all living in the neighborhood of Oxon Hill.

Because of the aroused indignation of the countryside, the prisoners have been held in the jail at Baltimore, since their arrest. The day after the assault, Miss Smith, with her escort Mr. Buckler had parked their automobile on the Oxon Hill road on the night of the attack. A group of colored men came along, and, with rocks and clubs, beat the young couple nearly into insensibility.

MOUNTED POLICE CHARGE INTO CROWD ON COMMON

Sacco Demonstration in Boston Broken Up With Several Arrests.

WOMEN SET FREE LATER

Boston, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Several men and women were arrested on Boston Common this afternoon when police charged into a group of about 20 persons carrying placards bearing inscriptions relating to Sacco and Vanzetti.

Those arrested were taken into custody in various sections of the common after the police had broken up the crowd. A few minutes previously the police had charged into a group of about 20 persons carrying placards bearing inscriptions relating to Sacco and Vanzetti.

The young woman walked across the common without speaking and a crowd gathered and followed. Two mounted policemen accompanied the woman as she crossed without stopping her. When she turned back for another try they arrested her and she was taken to a police station in a patrol wagon.

After her arrest the others arrived and the crowd gathered about them. Mounted and foot police attempted to break up the gathering and the pickets separated the officers arrested them. The crowd alternately cheered and booed.

The excitement on the Common had subsided the crowd had swelled to upward of 10,000 persons, most of whom appeared to be present solely as onlookers. It was the largest assembly yet held in this city in the interests of Sacco and Vanzetti.

Today also was the first time the police had resorted to a mounted force to break up the crowds at one of these meetings. Officers on horseback charged into the massed throng and set the scattered units in motion along the promenade on the Common.

The Sacco-Vanzetti pickets numbered about 200. They were carrying placards with a legend descriptive of their cause. Of those arrested only three were under charge. They were Raphael and Peter Sansevino, brothers, of Boston, charged with disorderly conduct, and Morris Schulman, of Brooklyn, N. Y., charged with inciting to riot.

Schulman, who wore a hiker's costume and carried a knapsack, said he was on a walking tour of the United States and had been invited to the demonstration by a friend.

William Malloska, Michigan millionaire, who was reported to be the funder for the flight, was not seen.

AERO-TO-EVIATION MAIL TRIAL BALKED BY FOGGY WEATHER

Navy Plane Returns to the Coast After Flying for Three Hours.

LOW VISIBILITY KEEPS "CEILING" AT 100 FEET

Radio Tells Force on Shore of Difficulties Encountered by Airmen.

Naval Air Station, Squantum, Mass., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Heavy fog off the Massachusetts coast early today defeated the first attempted shore-to-ship airmail flight.

The fog forced the PN-10, U. S. Navy flying boat, to return to its base here after the big plane had battled the thick weather in an effort to reach the liner Leviathan, 375 miles off the coast.

Carrying 100 pounds of mail, dispatched from New York to Boston by train after the Leviathan had sailed for Europe, the twin-motored seaplane hoped to reach the liner by 10:10 this morning. Three hours later, the ship returned, the attempt frustrated by the fog barrier.

Skies Gray at Takeoff. The mail had arrived from Boston, shortly before midnight, and was put on motor trucks and rushed here to the air station, where it was loaded on board the waiting plane.

Gray skies and a forbidding horizon attended the departure. A heavy fog bank at the outer bay was succeeded later by generally thick weather that kept the plane's ceiling at 100 feet. Visibility became so low that Lieut. C. H. Schildauer, in command of the plane, brought her back to return to base.

In addition to Lieut. Schildauer, Lieut. Bradford E. Crow, assistant pilot, two aviation mechanics, and a radio man formed the crew of the PN-10. Shortly before the PN-10 left the water, Lieut. Raymond Thomas, in command at the air station here, hopped off in a fast two-seater seaplane, accompanied by a representative of the Associated Press, to act as escort plane.

Climbs High Above Bay. As the mail plane, axed in a circle, warming up motors for the seaward dash, Lieut. Thomas climbed high above the waters of the bay. Turning in a vertical bank, the plane in a nose dive toward the PN-10, and zoomed over in a graceful salute.

The PN-10 left the water with apparent ease, and the two ships headed for the coast, the PN-10 flying at about a 400-foot level, with the escort on a parallel course, about 200 feet higher.

Shortly after leaving the station the two planes plunged into rolling clouds of fog. As the fog thickened, Lieut. Thomas signaled the reporter and shouted, "Looks bad!"

One of the PN-10 disappeared in the mist, reappearing as the escort ship prepared to swing out and avoid possible collision.

Wave Farewell to Flier. Over Nantasket the weather cleared slightly. Dropping under the nose of the mail plane, the occupants of the escort plane waved farewell at a point half way across Massachusetts Bay. At 5:30 p. m. the PN-10 radioed, "Running into fog."

Again, at 7:30, she sent: "Returning Squantum, due unfavorable weather. The Rev. H. H. Proctor, pastor of the church, was on the plane. Ceiling 100 feet. Visibility 1 mile."

This latter message was also directed to the commander of the Leviathan.

Radio Tells of Return. When the plane made a landfall, the operator radioed the last message before the antennae was reeled in, "Returned to Squantum."

The mail had been packed in 25-pound parcels in four waterproof sacks. Slowly, dropping one sack at a time, the plane landed on the beach. The light cruisers Raleigh and Trenton and the destroyers Billingsley and Lamson, with the Eagle 19, which was acting as patrol craft over the line of flight, were returning to port today.

Promoters of tomorrow's strike claim that the 15,000 workers would respond to their call at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, but spokesmen of the conservative elements predicted that the number would be much smaller.

A petition in the name of 800,000 trade unionists of Greater New York seeking to have the strike called off by Gov. F. D. Roosevelt, was presented to Gov. Roosevelt tomorrow morning by a delegation of union officials headed by Representative Fiorello H. La Guardia and Municipal Court Judge Jacob Fanken, of New York.

An appeal by Miss Luigia Vanzetti, sister of Bartolomeo Vanzetti, in "people throughout the world to stop whatever they are doing for a few minutes today, and to present a petition against the impending execution of her brother, was issued early today by the Sacco-Vanzetti defense committee.

The committee announced arrangements for continuous picketing of the State House.

Shanghai dispatch of August 20 reported five warships, believed to be the Northern Tientsin squadron, had appeared off Woosung, north of Shanghai, early this morning. One of them, was added, had fired a few shots at the Woosung forts.

THE MERCHANT MARINE AND WAR.

When Congress comes to consider the question of bringing the Navy up to the point required for adequate national defense, it should not confine its attention to cruisers alone. Other elements of naval defense are below national requirements. The chief of these, aside from cruisers, is the merchant marine.

The United States may build a Navy larger than any other in the world, but if it is lacking in merchant ships it is handicapped in case of war. American overseas possessions ought to be made safe against capture; but even if they should be abandoned rather than risk a fleet to defend them, as would probably be the case, the continent would still have to be safeguarded and the commerce of the Nation protected. Indispensable raw materials for war purposes would have to be imported in spite of enemy naval operations. Merchant ships would be as necessary as warships.

The crux of the dispute between British and American negotiators at Geneva was the merchant marine question. If Great Britain had not been immeasurably superior to the United States in merchant ships the cruiser disagreement could have been settled. Equality of merchant fleets would have made the United States indifferent to British demands for the limitation of size and gun power of cruisers; and Britain in that event would not have insisted upon such limitations. It is because Great Britain has an enormous merchant fleet, including many large and swift vessels, that the British government refused to reach an agreement with the United States unless this Government would limit the number of large cruisers and agree to build small cruisers only. With small American cruisers carrying only 6-inch guns, the British merchant fleet would have nothing to fear, for it can be equipped with 6-inch guns also, and many of the vessels would make splendid commerce destroyers, being faster than any American merchant vessels.

Unless the American merchant marine is developed to a size adequate to take care of commerce in peace and war, it can not be said that the United States Navy is prepared to take care of the country's interest and necessities.

The destruction of enemy commerce by American cruisers would not be sufficient for American needs. There would still be the necessity of carrying on commerce and importing indispensable raw materials, to say nothing of possible necessities in the way of transports for sending troops overseas. Great Britain at Geneva laid great stress, and properly so, upon the necessity of protecting British merchant ships in both peace and war. What would Britain do now if it were lacking sufficient merchant ships to meet its peace and war necessities?

The demand that the United States shall "go out of the shipping business" should not reach the point of abolishing the little merchant marine that now struggles for survival. If private enterprise can not be induced to build and operate an adequate merchant marine the Government should do so, as a matter of national defense. Great Britain manages to combine private enterprise with government control. Why can not the United States do the same thing? Since every merchant ship becomes of necessity a naval auxiliary in time of war, why should not that fact be taken into consideration when plans are discussed for the development of the merchant marine under private ownership and operation?

ILLINOIS IN NATIONAL POLITICS.

Mayor "Bill" Thompson of Chicago and Gov. Len Small of Illinois have made their peace after an enmity of two years, and there are those who see in renewed alliance the threat of another favorite son movement in Illinois, with the mayor of Chicago as a candidate for the presidential nomination. The State already has two potential "favorite sons," Lowden and Dawes. The entry of Thompson would give it front rank in the list of those with presidential possibilities.

The suggestion of a Thompson boom may stir the rivalries of the rest of the country. The Nation has not forgotten his mayoralty campaign, in which his principal plank was "Keep King George Out of Chicago." He has been linked with former Mayor Hylan of New York as a tub-thumper. But he had been vigorous in developing the city, and was elected again by a sizable majority. He gained a certain amount of national prominence by summoning a flood-control conference, and he has been a leader in the Gulf-to-Lakes waterways agitation.

Even before he made his peace with Gov. Small, which gives the combine a decidedly strong hold on the State, Mayor Thompson had announced his intention to make a tour of the country. Within the next few weeks he is to visit Syracuse, New York, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Detroit, Minneapolis, Omaha, Kansas City, Denver, Topeka, Cheyenne, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Memphis, Cincinnati and Atlanta. The mayor of Chicago would have no reason to consider such a "swing around the circle" for purely local and municipal reasons. There must be some other motive.

It is in relation to other candidacies rather than his own that the program of Mayor Thompson, supported by Gov. Small, takes on importance. Undoubtedly, it presages a strenuous fight for the Illinois delegation to the next Republican convention. Thompson has control of the Cook County organization. Small's hold on "down State" has never been shaken, despite attacks and disclosures that have not improved his political record. Both Thompson and Small are bitter enemies of former Gov. Lowden, while friendly to Vice President Dawes. The two bosses, with Senator Deneen, will probably dictate the instructions to the Illinois delegation in the Republican national convention. Mayor Thompson's activities, therefore, may have important national consequences.

TOO MANY CRIMINAL ALIENS.

Congress should tighten the fences around the United States and provide more generous funds for the expense of capturing and deporting criminal aliens who have sneaked into the country. Mr. Hull, Commissioner General of Immigration, reports that 11,662 aliens were deported during the year ended June 30. Of these 5,464 were deported for surreptitious entry and 1,525 because they belonged to the criminal and immoral class.

Thousands of vicious aliens are entering the country surreptitiously every year. They come as seamen, deserting their ship in the big ports; and through Mexico, Cuba and Canada. The Mexican border is inadequately patrolled and the Immigration Service is aware of many unlawful entries which it can not prevent. The quota law does not apply to Mexico or Canada. A thriving business is done in running aliens, liquor and narcotics into this country.

The increase in immigration from Mexico last year was 56.3 per cent over that of 1926. More than 67,000 Mexicans were admitted. It is said on good authority that there are in the United States 2,000,000 Mexicans, of whom 1,000,000 have come in surreptitiously. Many of them are good manual laborers, but they are an unassimilable people and as a class are undesirable. They do not become citizens, and a high percentage of them are criminal. The United States gains nearly 100,000 immigrants a year in the travel across the Canadian border. The new regulation that will go into effect on December 1 will not prevent Canadian citizens from coming into this country to work, but it will check the entry of non-Canadian aliens who cross the Canadian border into this country. That class will be required to obtain a quota number from their own country if they wish to enter the United States. Although the Canadian government found fault with the regulation, it is difficult to find any basis for objection on the part of Canada, as bona fide Canadians are not excluded. Perhaps the requirement calling for payment of a head tax is the cause of the complaint.

It is a hard task to catch a criminal alien in the mass of the people. The Immigration Service should be relieved of this expensive and difficult task as much as possible, by making it harder for such aliens to get into the country.

HENRY FORD'S BOLD MOVE.

The public is about to witness an industrial struggle of colossal magnitude. The new Ford car is to enter the market, to win or lose a crucial battle. Unlike other manufacturers, who changed their models from year to year, keeping abreast of the times, Henry Ford kept his model unchanged, and then, at enormous expense, remodeled his factory as well as his car in one fell swoop. In the meantime he left the market to other cheap cars, which have been persistent and dangerous competitors.

Will the new Ford now sweep all before it, or will it face ruinous competition? That is the question that engrosses the attention of Wall Street as well as Main Street. Henry Ford's financial resources are great, but so were J. Ogden Armour's. No one wishes to see Henry Ford lose what he has so honestly and worthily earned. But it is evident that he and his experts took a heavy responsibility when they risked the Ford fortunes upon a single change of automobile models. The cheap car field is now invaded by corporations possessing financial resources comparable with those of Mr. Ford, and with cars that are not contemptible competitors of the old Ford car.

It seems to be agreed that unless the new Ford car is a wonderful advance over existing cars at the same price, or is offered at a price that competition can not meet, the field will be at least shared, and the old-time Ford monopoly will disappear. It was a benevolent monopoly, and the public as a beneficiary instead of being a victim. Possibly the coming struggle will work to the advantage of the public without injury to either Mr. Ford or his rivals. But it is hardly probable that everybody will be benefited and nobody injured.

During the time the Ford factory has been nonproductive the car loadings have slumped 10,000 a week, according to the Wall Street Journal. This gives an idea of the size of the business, which consumes vast quantities of raw material and taxes the freight-carrying capacity of railroads to haul away Ford cars. Americans generally will be pleased if the resumption of production at the Ford factories will spell prosperity to Henry Ford.

WHAT CONSTITUTES A CITY?

A multitude of factors combine to make a city. Heretofore many of them have been intangible. A city grows and flourishes in one place and languishes in another, where conditions are identical. Efforts to make cities by a predestined plan have in nearly all cases resulted in failure. Students of human traits and government have puzzled long over the answer, and have seldom arrived at similar conclusions. A definition comes now from the courts of Pennsylvania.

Gilbertville covers a strip of land a mile and a half long and a half mile wide along a State highway in Berks County. Its inhabitants sought incorporation as a borough, and the court was asked to rule. "There is no drug store to fill the demand for pills, perfumes or soda water," said the judge in denying the application. "No tailor administering to the sartorial fastidious; no regular barber plies his trade during the daytime and the inhabitants must wait until evening to be shaved, shorn or bobbed. There is no lumber or coal yard, probably because only fourteen new houses have been built within the last 26 years."

Juridically, therefore, there must be a drug store, tailor, barber and a lumber yard to make a city. The formula is so simple that there ought to be no difficulty even in Gilbertville in complying with it. There are many other things that the urban dweller would want. For instance, courts, newspapers and filling stations; but possibly the Pennsylvania judge regarded these as evils rather than forerunners of civilization.

STEALING CRUISER PLANS.

The arrest of a Danish naval architect and the recovery of plans and specifications of one of the new scout cruisers is full of the flavor of Old World intrigue. Not since the days when jingoes were doing their best to breathe life into the Japanese menace has there been a hint of espionage in the United States in time of peace. The present plot follows all the traditions and conventions of romance—the theft of secret plans, the demand for a reward and the threat to sell them to some foreign power.

There was, however, an element of danger in this situation. The nations of the world are jealous of the inventions and improvements that go into naval construction. Every new naval vessel embodies certain features designed to establish superiority over an opposing fleet. The innovations are the result of extensive study and experiment. Their advantage decreases as soon as they become generally known. Such advances, it is true, can not remain secret long. But if a vessel of a new type can be completed before competitors become aware of the new design, there is a great gain of time.

Officials of the Navy have not yet disclosed what material differences there will be in the new scout cruisers and those already in commission. It is safe to say that there will be some, and they may be extremely important. There would have been no such effort to regain the plans, if this had not been true. If these conclusions are correct, there will be considerable public curiosity to learn the reasons that made it possible for an alien to obtain access to the designs. There is no suspicion that Denmark itself wanted the plans. The arrested man is evidently not the agent of any government. Nevertheless he is not an American citizen. He might as easily have been the secret agent of a country that would have paid generously for the plans. In matters that demand the utmost secrecy and which affect the security of the Nation, it is necessary to make use of foreign workmen?

SETTING CROOKS ON CROOKS.

The Nation is already familiar with the theory that the Government may tax that which it prohibits. A bootlegger who pays his income tax is in good standing with the Internal Revenue Bureau, no matter what they may think of him in the division of prohibition enforcement, but the acceptance of the tax due does not make valid his alcoholic operations. More recently a new form of co-operation between one department of the Government and those engaged in illegal traffic has come to light, and in this instance, too, it is a case of "no questions asked" to serve an end distinct from the objects of the eighteenth amendment.

Officials of the Secret Service, engaged in the war against counterfeiting, have discovered that "queer" money is being used in the liquor trade between Florida and the British West Indies. More than one Bermuda and Bimini dealer in alcoholic spirits has found that the American money which he received for his cargo was spurious. The situation is distressing both to the British subjects and those residents of Florida engaged in the importation of contraband whose money is good.

As matters stand now, all "greenbacks" have a suspicious tinge to the high seas merchants. Bootleggers whose money is genuine are having trouble exchanging it for Scotch and Rye. They are aroused over the activities of the "crooks," who are said to have sent their counterfeiters from Philadelphia to Florida for distribution. The aid of these aggrieved sound-money bootleggers has been sought to determine the source of the counterfeit bills. The Secret Service wants the plates, and the bootleggers are willing that it should have them. Their feud with other agencies of the Government does not enter into the situation. A law-abiding citizen evidently must be gauged in the light of whatever law happens to be in question.

FOREIGN LOTTERIES.

Somewhere about 40 years ago, when the old Louisiana lottery maintained an office in nearly every city of the country, there arose in the Pelican State a knight in the person of Samuel F. Robertson as the champion of the people of his State against the domination of that great gambling organization.

He won the fight, but lost his seat in the House. Congress enacted the antilobby law, and made it so stringent that no other lottery has ever obtained a successful foothold on the soil of the United States. There were foreign concerns, like the Great Havana and the Honduras, which succeeded in evading the postal laws for brief periods. But the business has not thrived for many years.

Recently, however, the Postoffice Department has experienced a great deal of trouble over the renewed activities of some of the lottery promoters in Europe. They seem to have secured a number of "sucker lists" as the lists of names of gamblers of this character are very properly called, and they have been so active in conducting their sales campaigns on this side of the Atlantic as to have approached members of the Senate.

In order that there may be closer cooperation between the governments of those countries in which lotteries are maintained for the purpose of ridding the mails from the Netherlands and Denmark of advertising matter, the circulation of which is unlawful in the United States, the Postoffice Department will seek the cooperation of officials connected with the foreign mail service of those countries. Should there be no satisfactory results from the move it is likely that the State Department will be asked to intervene. The Postoffice Department is determined to bring to an end the operations of foreign lottery concerns on American soil.

PRESS COMMENT.

Ohio's Leading Impossible.
Philadelphia Inquirer: Ohio has three possible candidates for President, not including Roy Haynes.

They'll Have to Go Some.
Philadelphia Record: Of course, if nations won't reduce their navies they must keep up with us.

Why They Lost Out.
Indianapolis Star: In starting that revolt, the Incas overlooked an opportunity to ascribe it to the Sacco-Vanzetti case.

Nothing Stumps Him.
Detroit News: Mr. Coolidge's versatility is astounding. He looks as unlikely a Sioux warrior as he did a cowboy.

Over and Under.
Wall Street Journal: Fewer crimes would be undertaken if more criminals were overtaken.

He'll Take the Count.
Omaha Bee: Prince Carol, exiled in Paris, claims himself king of Roumania. That boy must be a regular Jack Sharkey when it comes to asserting himself.

Do Candidates Pray?
Detroit Free Press: There are a whole lot of anious candidates who are hoping and praying that the country will take the President at his word.

Russia and Britain.
New York Times: If an examination is made of Russia's foreign policy in Asia within the last eight years it will be seen that, as in the days of the czars, the principal rivalry has been with Great Britain, and that most of the moves of the Soviets in the Near East, in China and in middle Asia have had as their purpose to embarrass Great Britain. It was to threaten Britain in India that the Soviets in 1922 negotiated for that domination over Afghanistan which the Czarist Russians had tried in vain to obtain.

May Be Presents From Hubby.
Boston Post: Out of a list of ten of the largest and most representative corporations of America the number of women stockholders is in excess of the men in all but one, United States Steel.

They Outnumber the men in American Telephone, Pennsylvania Railroad, General Electric and Pullman by substantial margins. In the ten big companies included in this list the women own stocks worth $1,500,000,000. It is quite evident that in investing on such a huge scale they are making their own choices rather than being guided by mere man.

Grandma's Nifty Ankles.
Baltimore Sun: It really happened in Stonington, Maine. A hundred feminine contestants were behind a screen which showed twelve inches of each ankle, and the judges chose the prettiest pair. And the possessor was a grandmother! The agelessness of ankles has been a stock joke so long that it is easy to guess the talk when the truth was at last told. But maybe the guess is wrong. Perhaps the folk at that party, like such people as Franz Hals and Whistler, are even willing to admit that grandmothers may have beautiful faces, too.

How to Locate Yourself.
New York Herald-Tribune: A way of doing things is not always useless merely because it is old. In the world's latest art of navigation through the air may be found, it is urged, for one of the oldest of all arts, the art of outdistancing from the stars. From the University of Iowa comes news of instructions issued by Prof. Charles C. Wyllie for aviators who find themselves

Service by Your Enemy

By ROBERT QUILLEN

A HOUND is lazy. Feed him well and he will lie all day in the shade and take life easy. But he will get some exercise, for he has enemies. He scratches the place where the fleas bite, and thus all things work together for good.

It is foolish deliberately to make enemies, for you need all the good will you can get; but those who become your enemies in spite of all you can do are an asset not to be despised.

You have faults and weaknesses. The sum of these is the extent to which you fall short of being the man you might be. And if you have only the comments of friends to guide you, it isn't at all probable that you realize how imperfect you are.

Friends are those who like us in spite of our faults. They are not blind to our shortcomings. That isn't the trouble. The trouble is that their love for us keeps them silent concerning unpleasant things.

Because they are silent and because our own vanity blinds us to the truth, we go serenely on our way while our faults multiply and take deeper root.

Evils tend to cure themselves, however, and here is a case in point. Our faults make enemies and the enemies mend the faults.

Enemies talk behind our backs and their remarks are repeated to us by loving friends; or an occasional enemy, exasperated beyond endurance by something unusually offensive, loosens his tongue and tells us many things for the good of our souls.

Enemies exaggerate, of course. When they express an opinion of you, you may divide it by six. But when the division is finished there remains a nugget of truth that is worth more to you than all the pleasant things your friends have said in a month.

There is no profit in a compliment—unless your backbone needs stiffening. While you are at ease in Zion, a compliment is merely a drug to deaden your wits.

If you have your share of vanity, and you have if you are normal, your best friend is an enemy who will occasionally haul off and jar your eye teeth loose.

When the dentist is hurting you, he is doing you good. And that's the way it is with enemies.

You can't tell about words. Many a husband who stays in at night doesn't choose to.

Swords can be beaten into plowshares, but there isn't much you can do about loose tongues.

We confess to a capitalistic mind. We can't see how the slaughter of innocent people at a great distance can benefit two condemned radicals.

lost over unknown lands or seas with no visible landmark except the eternal points of brilliance in the sky above. By sighting upward along the line of a plumb bob, making a few other simple observations and referring to a star map small enough to be carried in one's pocket, it is quite possible, the professor asserts, for an aviator to locate himself on the earth's surface with an error of less than 35 miles. Perhaps the feat of sighting upward along the vertical cord to see just what star is exactly above would require some acrobatics in the ordinary airplane, but no doubt it is possible. The rest of the procedure is simplicity itself.

Defense Expenses.

Toledo Blade: What with hiring lawyers and purchasing dynamite, Sacco and Vanzetti have cost their friends considerable money.

Fishermen's Rights!

New York Herald Tribune: It is possible to sympathize with a protest raised by Long Island sportsmen who, arriving upon the swordfishing grounds 20 miles southeast of Block Island, were warned off by "nine United States vessels of war" which incontinently began target practice at the precise point where the fishing was good. To the fishermen it "looked as if the Atlantic was not big enough for them," and so it must look to any one else who has admired the time-honored and difficult art of harpooning the swordfish. What with prohibition and other things, the United States has so many Wars and vessels on its hands that available shooting room may be getting small, but that will not extenuate what appears to be an arbitrary and militaristic interference with a noble industry.

They Like the U. S. A.

Ohio State Journal: Canadian officials and prominent educators are seriously annoyed by the constant movement of professional young men to the United States, once they have completed their training in the Canadian universities. Alumni association records of the University of Toronto show that of the living graduates 12 per cent are residents of the United States. Of the graduates of all the major educational institutions in the provinces, 13 per cent live in the United States.

GERMANY CAN PAY.

"Henry M. Robinson, of the Dawes Commission, after a thorough investigation this year, stated that the German people are well able to pay reparations in full," writes Conrad Clothier Lealey in July Current History. "For the reparations burden is probably less certainly no greater—than Germany sustained in maintaining her war establishment before 1914. Germany's annual income is about $14,000,000,000, or more than twenty times the greatest annual reparations payments. Reparations at the maximum will place a tax on the national income of but 5 per cent. Our associates will receive annually from 62,000,000 Germans more than twice the amount their 200,000,000 citizens, excluding vast and populous colonies, will pay the United States."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Judge Gary's Public Spirit.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the death of Judge Elbert H. Gary the world has lost a splendid man, whose life should be a fine example to the young people. Judge Gary was a man of great simplicity and good taste and of good judgment in anything he undertook. Though not trained in industrial activities, yet when this tremendous and important enterprise of the United States Steel Corporation was placed under his guidance he made the greatest success of it. He was kindly and beloved by a very large number, including most of the workers in the steel corporation.

Far from being tyrannical, Judge Gary on the contrary set an example of cooperation, so that he created enthusiasm among the workers and was an example of love and cooperation rather than a disciplinarian, and was thus able to achieve the greatest results. The conduct of this great industrial undertaking was not the least of his activity. The result—well publicized and interested in all good works of charity and social welfare. If we had many men of his type it would help greatly in the prosperity and uplift of the large community.

ADOLPH LEWISOHN.
New York, Aug. 19.

How to Avoid War.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your criticism of the attitude of the World Federation of Educational Associations at its recent meeting in Toronto is just. You might have been far stronger and still been within reason, without bitterness. The United States has had and costly experiences, costly in money, and costly in what is far more precious—life—by its constant state of unpreparedness. There is an old adage which says that a stitch in time saves nine. This is as true in the affairs of nations as it is in domestic life.

Thomas Jefferson was himself a pacifist, and the country even in those early days had many of the same ilk. He forgot to take the stitch in time. In fact, he unraveled some of the stitches that had been taken under his predecessors, Washington and John Adams. He practically dismantled our Navy and disbanded our Army. Madison, who followed him, also neglected to take the timely stitch. The result—we plunged into a war with Great Britain without a Navy, without an Army, with a bankrupt Treasury. Had we been prepared Great Britain would have submitted to our demands for free seas, and there would have been no war.

When we declared war against Spain we were so little prepared for war President McKinley was compelled to go into the open market and purchase ships to convey our troops to Cuba, the Philippines and Porto Rico. Had we been prepared Germany would not have dared provoke us to enter the World War, by its ruthless undersea attacks on commerce.

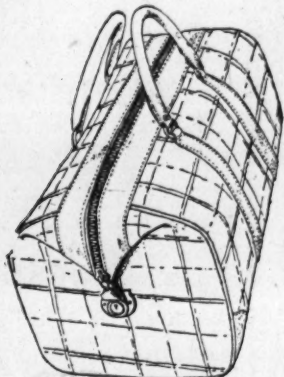

We have no desire to attack any other nation, and if we keep constantly prepared no other nation will dare attack us. Ample preparation is the best guaranty of peace. It is well enough to talk about the universal brotherhood of man, but it is an excellent thing to keep our powder dry, and to have plenty of it.

Pleasing Prospects.

Emporia Gazette: Doctors who today are carving out the appendix with enthusiasm will be laughed at in twenty years by the surgeons who will have a new theory about the puzzling little intestine. Tuberculosis will be conquered, cancer under control, man will live to be 100, but he will have new sicknesses, which will keep him from dying when new troubles make him long for the good old limit of three-score-years-and-ten!

St. Anthony Benefit Fete Opens Tonight

A carnival, to raise funds to clear St. Anthony's Church of debt, will start on the church lawn, at Twelfth and Moore streets northeast, tonight, and will continue until Saturday. Dancing and many added attractions will be features of the carnival.

George Yocum, who was recently elected permanent chairman of the executive committee of the church, will be in charge of arrangements for the carnival. The carnival is expected to attract an attendance of more than 3,000 people to become acquainted with his parishioners.

Mutual Aid Society Will Attend Outing

The Mutual Aid Society will hold an outing on Thursday at Chesapeake Beach. Mrs. Helen S. Chaconas, of Hill Top Manor, is in charge of arrangements.

The excursion season at the beach will be unusually prolonged this year. One of the largest excursions of the season will not be held until Saturday, September 17, when the Employees Welfare Association of the United States Veterans' Bureau will visit the resort. This bureau, one of the largest in the Federal service, has 5,000 employees, and an attendance of more than 3,000 is expected. H. T. Appleby heads the arrangements committee.

200 Attend Y. M. C. A. Services.

About 200 persons attended the open-air services held under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. at Lincoln Park yesterday afternoon. The Rev. John Paul Tyler, pastor of Epworth M. E. Church South, spoke. John L. Batesman led the singing and William E. Schumucker played the organ. Kenneth Buker gave the opening prayer, and the Rev. H. L. Schlincke pronounced the benediction.

JUST FOLKS
By EDGAR A. GUEST

ANY OLD GOLF CLUB FOR A CHILD.

"Let me see your driver,"
Said I, to Mistress Mary,
A maiden sweet and pretty
And not a bit contrary.

She handed me a golf club
As ancient as the game is,
"To make you play with that thing,"
Said I, "a downright shame is!"

"Tw's long ago discarded,
Your granddad couldn't use it;
Your mother wouldn't play it,
Just take it out and lose it!"

"It's bad enough to make you
Play balls which they've rejected,
But giving you that war club
Is thrift that's misdirected."

"It was your father's father's,
An heirloom and a relic,"
And pretty Mistress Mary
Gave me a smile angelic.

And pretty Mistress Mary
Flushed red and thanked me sweetly,
Then went and bought a driver
Which suited her completely.

Today I met her mother,
Who frowned on me and muttered:
"It cost me just eight-fifty
For that advice you uttered."

"I'd thank you with my children
To watch what you are saying,
Don't tell them they need new clubs
Unless the bills you're paying."

"Ah me," thought I, "how careful
One has to be and wary!
I talked, and lost the mother,
But made a friend of Mary!"

KENT RECEIVES PATENTS
COVERING ONE-DIAL SETGreater Selectivity Now Is Held Available to Unskilled Operators.

ROXY ORGANIST ON AIR

Considered the biggest news in the radio manufacturing field and of interest to dealers as well as listeners is the granting here by the Patent Office to A. Atwater Kent, of Philadelphia, two basic patents upon his one-dial receiving set. Mr. Kent was a pioneer in this field, and until his single-dial device was conceived it was said to be extremely difficult, if not impossible, to employ a multiplicity of radio frequency amplifying tubes and associated tuning devices and adjust the latter by a single operation.

The featured member of Roxy's Gang tonight will be Lew White, the 26-year-old organist of the theater. At the age of 5 he started studying the violin under his father, Herman White, a well-known teacher in Philadelphia. There followed years of intensive, thorough musical training under European masters, including Heinrich Pfitzner, the German instructor. Later, at Bar Harbor, Me., the young musician received an artist's training on the piano from Ernest Schelling.

About ten years ago, when theater organs were becoming popular, Lew White foresaw the great field for organists in motion-picture houses. Accordingly, he studied the organ with Dr. Alexander H. Matthews, doctor of music, at the University of Pennsylvania.

In addition to solos by Lew White, the other members of the gang will be heard, also the 110-piece symphony orchestra, the 100-voice chorus and the cathedral chimes.

The United States Navy Band concert from the Plaza of the Capitol under the direction of Lieut. Charles Benter, will be broadcast at 8 o'clock. The last program by the Moonlight Sextet will be heard from WRC at 9 o'clock tonight in a half hour made up of selections, which members of the listening audience have mentioned as the most successful presented by the sextet. Included will be "Flow Gently, Sweet Afton," "My Old Kentucky Home," "Kentucky Babe," "Let Me Call You Sweetheart," and "How Can I Leave Thee."

Jack Albin's and the Palais d'Or orchestra will be on the air from 9:30 to 11 o'clock. During the afternoon a play-by-play account of the Washington-Detroit baseball game will be given by Thornton Fisher, beginning at 3 o'clock.

Louis Ludlow, president of the National Press Club, will talk on "The Pride of the Fourth Estate," will be heard from WMAL during the Caleb O'Connor period between 9 and 10 o'clock. This talk will be followed by the fifth of a series of addresses by Caleb O'Connor, the subject for tonight being "Articulation—the Chief Essential of Correct Speaking."

"The Nordica String Quartet," directed by Walter T. Holt, and including N. W. DeLoe, first mandolin; R. A. Koontz, second mandolin; Philip Florida, tenor mandola, and R. A. Hart, cello mandola, will put on a half-hour program from WMAL, beginning at 9:30 o'clock.

Station WODA, of Paterson, N. J., announced that arrangements had been made to broadcast their reports of ship news to Old Glory when it takes off from Roosevelt Field for Rome for 24 hours after the start of this flight. Officials of the station hope thus to enable the plane and ships along the path of the flight to keep in touch with New York.

Woman Found Dead
In Chair in Kitchen

Mrs. Florence M. Sprague, 73 years old, of 622 Twenty-second street northwest, was found dead in a chair in the kitchen of her home yesterday. Dr. J. Ramsey Nevin, coroner, certified death was due to heart disease.

Mrs. Loretta V. Wright, a lodger, discovered the body and called Emergency Hospital. The ambulance physician pronounced her dead.

Child Injured by Automobile

Three-year-old Charles Chapman, 2408 Second street northeast, was bruised about the body yesterday when run down in front of 2215 Fourth street, northeast, by an automobile driven by Mrs. R. P. Starkey, 231 Channing street northeast.

Mrs. Starkey drove the lad to Sibley Hospital, where he was treated.

Stahl, who pitched for the Bearcats, was the big factor in the defeat. He scattered three hits through-out, and retired nine batters by strike-outs.

COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT of KINGS

W. BERT COLLYER

GATHER CLOSER.

Down at Saratoga, where Walter H. Pearce, my chief of staff, is in personal charge of the bureau, I have the sweet happy chatter slipped me—"JUDGE BARTLETT is the real ripe persimmon of this grand and glorious meeting. Buxton and his friends are down hook, line and sinker. Don't believe the issue will even be close." Now that sounds like winning info to me.

Seventh race at the Spa is the place of unbellying. Never mind what figures second or third. Go get yours while the getting is good.

ATOI is another overnight commission horse. Lamp and comment on this bird. "Has been going great guns in private trials; looks like a stand-out."

In the event that the going turns muddy, McALIFFE will turn the trick—in fact he is "poison." Right now, in the gumbo.

Out at Hawthorne, the fields are a bit less un-widely today, but nevertheless well-balanced. JOE ADAMS is the hotly tosy named by the "dynamiters" as the wash day special. JOE has been knocking at the door for several starts and is ready to romp. RUANE is king of a very poor lot of 3-year-olds in the third and should experience little difficulty in earning brackets.

EN-CANTO will be better suited if the going is heavy, while LITTLE AMMIE may need a race to put her on edge.

SCOTLAND and Jockey Earl Pool is the winning combination in the third.

LADY MARIE seems to loom up as the contender and she is good, game and consistent. MISS ROSEDALE should outlast S.A.R., which was colder than Casey's maunders last time. MARGARET GAUT has shown rare, rare consistency and may hold the others safe. VIOLLET BETTY—if she don't bleed—should win the closing spasm.

Over at Windsor, the clockers send me HOPELESS as a "copper riveted" clinch. Goes in the closing dash.

You have the answer to all this matter in your lily white mitt. More anon.

KNICKS EARLY LEAD BEATS HARPS

Shamrocks Get 14 Hits But Lose 9 to 7 in Hollow.

THE Knickerbockers, piling up a four-run lead in the first inning, scored a 9-to-7 victory over the Shamrocks on the Georgetown Hollow yesterday.

Rose Fisher and McCarty divided the pitching burden for the winners, and while the Shamrocks out-hit the Knicks, 14 to 11, pitched good ball in the pinch. Burrows and Kuhnert pitched for the "Harps" and were touched for eleven safeties.

Broomey made a wonderful catch for the Knickerbockers, which probably saved them from defeat when he made a one-handed stab, pulling down Hiss' drive which looked like a sure home.

Two men were on base at the time.

SUMMER DULLNESS
STILL RETAINS GRIP
ON GENERAL TRADE

Steel Operations Fall Behind
Record of August of Last Year.

AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY
PREPARES FOR AUTUMN

Oil Men More Optimistic.
Week's Car Loadings
Show Decline.

New York, Aug. 21 (Associated Press).—There were few developments last week to indicate any decided change in the complexion of general business in the United States. There may have been a slight upward trend to the curve of industrial activity, but in the main the week was marked by a continuation of the midsummer dullness, more or less normal at this season.

Among the so-called barometers of trade, steel was fairly typical of the industry in general. While August operations have been higher than those in July, they still are falling behind the record of August last year. Demand, if not brisk, is steady, and while the railroads are buying steel and other materials, more important contracts have been placed by general construction interests. Meanwhile prices continued along the same level as that of the preceding week, except for a moderate tightening of quotations on steel scrap at Pittsburgh. Nonferrous metal prices were easier.

Auto Buying Increases.

The automobile industry was busily engaged with its plans for the autumn and early winter. A new model or two and a few price reductions tended to help increase current buying, but there was no unusual quickening of demand. Coming new models still attracted attention, and some important announcements along this line have been promised for the near future. Oil men were beginning to feel a little more optimistic over the outlook for success in efforts to eliminate the overproduction evil. The troublesome Seminole field, perhaps, has not yet been subdued, but with the daily production voluntarily limited to 400,000 barrels, with some measure of success, operators were inclined to view the situation there as considerably less clouded than it has been in months.

Plan Reduction Elsewhere.

Taking Seminole as a lesson, operators of the new West Texas field, which has been threatening to burst into the list of problems, have called a series of meetings to plan curtailment. The method in use in the Oklahoma area is being studied and probably will be applied to West Texas in all its broader measures.

Car loadings for the first week of August, just reported, again show a decline. This drop brings the aggregate freight tonnage for the year below the figure for the same period of 1926 for the first time, which in many quarters has been accepted as final evidence that hopes for a business volume in 1927 to equal that of last year will not be fulfilled.

The abundance of money at easy rates also has been cited as testimony against any possibility of record-breaking business this year. Enormous sums which ordinarily are put to work in various lines of industry and trade this year have drifted toward the stock and bond markets. Yet there are those who see in the case of money favorable signs for business expansion. With interest at low rates, they argue, commerce can economically add to working capital and thus increase its activity. Corn growth during the week was fair, but it was still being retarded.

BOND PRICES' AVERAGE

NEAR YEAR'S TOP MARK

Relative Scarcity of Offerings Causes Only Fair Volume of Trading.

NEW FINANCING SHRINKS

New York, Aug. 21 (By the Associated Press).—A current of strength flowed through the bond market last week, the average of prices working close to the high level of the year. The current upward movement had been practically uninterrupted since the reduction of the Federal Reserve Bank's rediscount rate a little more than two weeks ago.

The abundance of money at easy rates also has been cited as testimony against any possibility of record-breaking business this year. Enormous sums which ordinarily are put to work in various lines of industry and trade this year have drifted toward the stock and bond markets. Yet there are those who see in the case of money favorable signs for business expansion. With interest at low rates, they argue, commerce can economically add to working capital and thus increase its activity. Corn growth during the week was fair, but it was still being retarded.

SUMMER DULLNESS

STILL RETAINS GRIP
ON GENERAL TRADE

Steel Operations Fall Behind
Record of August of Last Year.

AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY
PREPARES FOR AUTUMN

Oil Men More Optimistic.
Week's Car Loadings
Show Decline.

New York, Aug. 21 (Associated Press).—There were few developments last week to indicate any decided change in the complexion of general business in the United States. There may have been a slight upward trend to the curve of industrial activity, but in the main the week was marked by a continuation of the midsummer dullness, more or less normal at this season.

Among the so-called barometers of trade, steel was fairly typical of the industry in general. While August operations have been higher than those in July, they still are falling behind the record of August last year. Demand, if not brisk, is steady, and while the railroads are buying little steel and motor manufacturers are still marking time, some important contracts have been placed by general construction interests. Meanwhile prices continued along the same level as that of the preceding week, except for a moderate tightening of quotations on steel scrap at Pittsburgh. Nonferrous metal prices were easier.

Auto Buying Increases.
The automobile industry was busily engaged with its plans for the autumn and early winter. A new model or two and a few price reductions tended to help increase current buying, but there was no unusual quickening of demand. Coming new models still attracted attention, and some important announcements along this line have been promised for the near future.

Oil men were beginning to feel a little more optimistic over the outlook for success in efforts to eliminate the overproduction evil. The troublesome Seminole field, perhaps, has not yet been subdued, but with the daily production voluntarily limited to 450,000 barrels, and with the managers of operations generally inclined to view the situation there as considerably less clouded than it has been in months.

Plan Reduction Elsewhere.
Taking Seminole as a lesson, operators of the new West Texas field, which was threatening to burst into the list of problems, have called a series of meetings to plan curtailment. The method in use in the Oklahoma area is being studied and probably will be applied to West Texas in all its broader measures.

Car loadings for the first week of August, just reported, again show a decline. This drop brings the aggregate freight tonnage for the year below the figure for the same period of 1926 for the first time, which in many quarters was accepted as final evidence that hopes for a business volume in 1927 to equal that of last year will not be fulfilled.

The abundance of money at easy rates also has been cited as testimony against any possibility of record-breaking business this year. Enormous sums which ordinarily are put to work in various lines of industry and trade this year have drifted toward the stock and bond markets. Yet there are those who see in the ease of money a favorable sign for business expansion. With interest at a low level, they argue, commerce can economically add to working capital and thus increase their activity.

Corn growth during the week was fair, but it still was being retarded by unseasonable weather in many sections. The wheat outlook, aside from some districts where the black rust has become a real menace, was good, and the oats crop is not expected to be disappointing.

Bank clearings were well above the figure of the corresponding week of last year, and showed a moderate gain over those of the second week of August.

WALL STREET NEWS BRIEFS

New York, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Wall street now is at the peak of the vacation season. All leading banks and brokerage houses are operating with greatly reduced staffs, so that little new financing or major market operations are in prospect. Stock market observers generally look for a fortnight of irregular price movements.

The Equitable Trust Co. of New York tomorrow will open a life insurance trust department, the first of its kind in the United States. The new policy is a method of meeting the problem of conserving estates produced by life insurance has been realized for some time, the bank states, adding that 90 per cent of all estates amounting to $5,000 or over are entirely consumed at the time of the owner's death, and the balance is lost to the heirs. The bank purposes to work with insurance companies and independent underwriters.

New offerings tomorrow include $3,000,000 National Fireproofing Co. 20-year 5 1/2 per cent sinking fund gold debentures at 96 1/2 and interest to yield about 5.80 per cent.

A new issue of fixed trust shares, issued by the Equitable Trust Co. of New York, trustee, and countersigned by American Basic-Business Shares Corporation, depositor, is being offered in denominations of from 5 to 5,000 shares. Each share represents 1-1,000th participating ownership in a unit of 130 common shares of 30 leading American basic industries. They are priced at 17 1/2 per cent accumulated dividend since coupon date.

Woman Shot; Man Arrested.
Accused of shooting Florence Cook, colored, 17 years old, during a fight at their home, 204 Calaudet street, northeast, Ames Hepburn, colored, 37 years old, was arrested yesterday at the Twelfth Precinct. The woman was treated at Freedmen's Hospital for a wound in the right thigh.

CURB RALLIES SHARPLY

AFTER SINKING SPELL
Specialty Shares Return to Year's High Prices; Other Stocks Move Up.

New York, Aug. 21 (Associated Press). Prices in the curb market last week rallied forcefully from the heavy sinking spell of the week before, several popular specialties quickly returning to the neighborhood of their high prices for the year. Motors, oils, public utilities and chain stores all shared in the general forward movement.

The outstanding feature of the week was the activity and strength of General Motors new stock, traded in on a "when issued" basis. These shares with a turnover of 185,000 shares, established a new high record for one day's sales of an individual stock on the curb. Total sales of the issue, up to the time when it was transferred to the big board on Friday, amounted to more than 400,000 shares at prices ranging from 113 1/2 to 114 1/2.

Strength of other motor issues was partly in sympathy with the General Motors activity and partly in anticipation of expanding sales in the fourth quarter. Petroleum shares reflected growing optimism over the outlook for success in efforts to stop the flow of Crude Oil, particularly in Seminole field, Okla.

Public utility stocks, while less active than in other recent weeks, continued to gain ground in consequence of good earnings. Chain stores advanced in anticipation of good business in the retail lines during the fall.

The most violent fluctuations were recorded in U. S. Freight, which jumped in one day from $94 to $108 a share, and then dropped back to $95.50.

About a dozen new issues admitted to trading included new common and preferred stocks of the International Mercantile Marine and the $200,000 Sinclair Consolidated Oil 6 per cent.

BOND PRICES' AVERAGE

NEAR YEAR'S TOP MARK
Relative Scarcity of Offerings
Causes Only Fair Volume of Trading.

New York, Aug. 21 (By the Associated Press).—The average of bond prices flowed through the bond market last week, the average of prices working close to the high level of the year. The current upward movement had been practically uninterrupted since the reduction of the Federal Reserve Bank's rediscount rate a little more than two weeks ago. Bank clearings were well above the figure of the corresponding week of last year, and showed a moderate gain over those of the second week of August.

Trading was in fair volume, but the principal reason that buying did not run into larger figures was the fact that offerings were relatively scarce. Bonds can not be bought unless they are for sale, and in a time of low credit rates it is a recognized truth that prospective buyers are no more eager to possess high-grade investment securities than their current holders. Even with prices at or just below the year's high record, this retail, consequently, near the year's low point, the market has been colored by reluctance on the selling side, exerting some little restraint on buying and supporting prices on a rock-like foundation.

To be sure, easy money is not the only contributing factor in the upward movement of prices. Indications that the business of the country is moving along at a somewhat slower pace, but in some other years have tended to divert large sums to the securities market. Funds which otherwise would gravitate naturally to commercial pursuits are confronted with the need of finding other work, hence much of it finds its way into investment in bonds.

Again the small amount of indebtedness of which much was said and written during the late spring and early summer, has been greatly alleviated by the sharp contraction of new offerings in July and August, and the unprecedented flood of reinvestment money which poured into the market at the end of the second quarter. With the exception of some high-priced municipal bonds, which have moved very slowly, only a small amount of the unabridged new material remains to compete with the listed market.

During July and August the appearance of $100,000,000 in new issues has been rare, whereas during the first six months of the year it was an unusual week when more than $100,000,000 did not arrive. A $200,000,000 week occurred no more than a flutter of surprise. For the average was not far below that figure. New issues in the past week continued to reflect the midsummer contraction, aggregating about $149,000,000, a total, compared with approximately $80,000,000 in the preceding week, and around $475,000,000 in the corresponding six days of 1926.

No great volume of new offerings has appeared over the horizon to complicate the situation in the immediate future. A large foreign loan, not yet identified, is reported near, to aggregate perhaps $30,000,000 or $40,000,000. A sizable domestic railroad offering also received comment during the week, presumably the New Haven issue to repay the road's indebtedness to the government. The New Haven plan, however, rather than borrowing on bonds, contemplates the sale of about $49,000,000 of preferred stock.

Activity of French securities in the past week or two has been attended by rumors of an early refunding operation by the Paris government. Much of the buying which reflected some of the republic's bonds to new high record prices has been attributed to parties close to the French government, and designed to pave the way for refunding some of the French issues.

BOY SCOUT WINNERS IN CAMPING CONTEST ARE AWARDED MEDALS

Capital Contingent to Reach
City Today After Two Weeks at Quantico.

MARINE COMMANDANT WILL REVIEW TROOPS

Ceremony to Take Place at Reflecting Pool; Drum and Bugle Corps Planned.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Camp Neville, Quantico, Va., Aug. 21.—In the presence of several hundred visitors, Maj. Gen. W. C. Neville, commanding general of the Marine Barracks, Quantico, Va., today presented medals and other awards to the winners among the Boy Scouts from various Washington troops who have been encamped here for the past two weeks.

The Washington contingent will leave tomorrow morning at 7:30 o'clock, arriving at the Navy Yard wharf about 10:30, and will demonstrate their ability as a drum and bugle corps for Maj. Gen. John A. Lejeune, commandant of the Marine Corps, who will review them at the reflecting pool at 11:30 o'clock. Their places will be taken here by the East Landdowne, Pa., troop of scouts, one of the crack troops of the country.

The Washington troop will go home in charge of Sgt. William Halsey of the Marine Corps, who has had virtual charge of the camp under command of Capt. Joseph J. Staley, U. S. M. C. Capt. Staley will accompany the troops as will Private Joseph J. Slonowski, who has been their musical instructor. Private Slonowski will direct the band at the reflecting pool.

The boys showed the effect of their two weeks' training today when Gen. Neville arrived and they lined up for the "ruffles and flourishes" which are the traditional salute of the Marine Corps. Just to show their versatility, the boys put on about a half dozen additional numbers for the honor of the Marine Corps, which is the nucleus of a Boy Scout drum and bugle corps representative of the entire district.

Medals Are Awarded.

Judges officiating in the selection of the winners of the various classes had a hard time, as the boys were so good. Capt. Staley called the winners in each class forward and Gen. Neville pinned on the medals, adding a commendatory word for each recipient.

The classes and winners were as follows:

Camping—William F. Everard, first; Noble L. Viers, second; George Corder and Elmer L. Seger, runners-up.

Tent pitching—Curtis Woodhouse, first; R. M. Hatfield, second.

Knock out—Bennett Powers, first; Eugene P. Everard, second; Alvin G. Nye, second; Dick E. Babcock, third.

Birdhouse building—Edward H. Hitt, first; Leon Comerford, second.

Special awards were made to George Torney and George E. Miller, as morale builders; Edward H. Hitt, for keeping the camp clean; and Willard R. Memier, as song leader.

Two Women Injured When Auto Hits Tree

Two young women were injured yesterday morning when the automobile in which they were riding, crashed into a tree near the Ford in Rock Creek Park and overturned.

The injured, according to police, were Miss Ruby Riley, 20 years old, 3023 Cambridge place, northwest, who suffered head lacerations, and Miss Mary Duval, 17 years old, 1219 Twenty-ninth street northwest, whose ankle was sprained. The automobile was driven by Robert Graham, 7010 Alaska avenue northwest. The injured were treated at Georgetown University Hospital.

James E. Murray, 62 years old, of Alexandria, Va., was arrested yesterday on a charge of assault by Patrolman H. L. Jacobs, of the Third Precinct, who said that Murray hit him after asking him for money.

The policeman said that Murray approached him at Thirtieth and Pennsylvania avenue northwest and asked him for alms. The policeman, who was in plain clothes, identified himself, whereupon he averred, the other man started fighting. Jacobs overpowered the man, but suffered a broken finger in the struggle.

Man Injured in Auto Crash.

When the automobile in which he was riding crashed with another car and overturned at Seventh and Q streets northwest yesterday, W. H. Simmons, colored, 63, 33 Q street northwest, was injured about the back. He was riding with Phil Sherman, colored, 33, of the same address. The other car was operated by James Lopez, colored, 20, 2011 Georgia avenue northwest.

Man Robbed in Alley.

While walking in an alley in the rear of 1300 Florida avenue northwest, yesterday, Albert Conway, stopping at the Salvation Army Home, Seventh and P streets northwest, was held up and robbed of $76 by a negro.

Militia Parades for Wives And Sweethearts at Camp

Tanned and hardened by a week of work in the open, Washington's National Guardsmen exhibited their military training yesterday before the admiring eyes of their parents, sweethearts, wives and friends. The occasion was the regimental parade of the 121st Engineers, encamped at Fort Humphreys, Va.

The parade lasted from 5 to 5:30 p. m., after which the guardsmen were dismissed until "taps" at 10 p. m. It was the only duty the men were called on to perform yesterday.

The camp virtually was deserted in the morning. Taking advantage of the brief respite from the heavy work which they had been performing all week, most of the men obtained leave Saturday and came to their homes here. They returned yesterday, accompanied by their wives and sweethearts to show them how they live while in camp.

Today the regiment will attend to the complete construction of a spar bridge across a gully near the camp. When the bridge is completed motor equipment

GLASS DENIES ATTACK ON CAPITAL REPORTERS

Virginia Senator Declares He Has Not Advocated Censorship of News.

The interpretation of the remarks attributed to Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, at the University of Virginia Public Institute, in which he was held to have attacked the ability and fairness of Washington correspondents, is depicted in a letter from the institute to Richard V. Oulahan, regarded as the dean of the correspondents of the Capital.

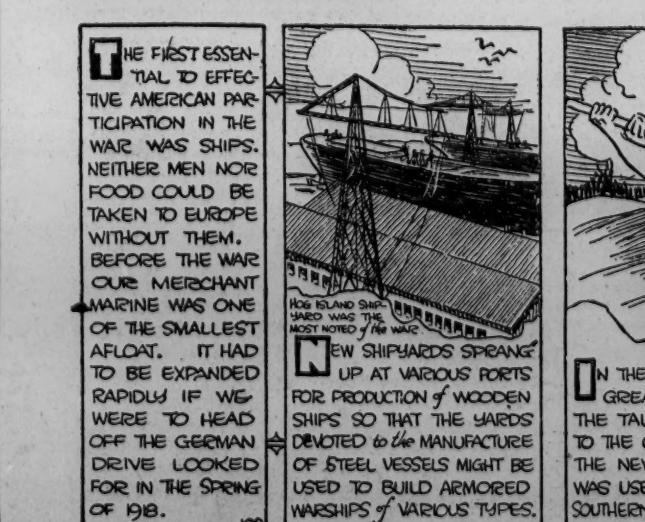

Supplementing the letter, Senator Glass, in a statement, said: "I did not imagine that there was a newspaper in the country, much less in Washington, where I have spent 25 years in public life, that was credulous enough to suppose that I could have been preposterous enough to advocate 'severe restriction' or 'censorship' of the news in face of the constitutional guaranty of the freedom of the press. As a newspaper publisher myself and as a man of ordinary good sense, I did not come in thousands of miles of even thinking, much less suggesting, such a thing."

In his letter to Oulahan, Senator Glass points out that he spoke extemporaneously at the institute, and continues:

"As primarily a newspaper man and incidentally a United States senator, I remarked that I could view the question impartially from both sides; and, while paying tribute to the literary accomplishments and painstaking habits of some newspaper editors and correspondents, I deprecated the hurtful and inaccurate statements of others, as to the accuracy of expression and of facts, saying that it hurt my professional pride as a newspaper man more than it irritated me as a United States senator to find newspapers, editorially and otherwise, accentuating, and sometimes fabricating, the sensational phase of incidents rather than adhering to the unvarnished truth."

"In a word, I contrasted the care with which the editorial and news columns of the great papers were edited in the days of men like Charles A. Dana with the rather indifferent style which now characterizes so many newspapers. I gave as one concrete example the widely published report that Senator Wheeler and I had engaged in a fistfight on the floor of the Senate, when nothing of the kind had ever occurred or was even contemplated by either of us."

OVER HERE—OVER THERE—

MAINLY PROTESTANT MINISTERS BLAMED IN ATTENDANCE DROP

Christianity Neglected for Other Topics, Col. J. T.
Axton Declares.

HOLDS CHURCH PAPERS ARE EQUALLY CULPABLE

Religious Influence Needed to Aid Process of Law,
He Believes.

Blame for the decrease in Protestant church membership was placed squarely upon the shoulders of clergymen and editors of denominational papers who are showing a growing willingness to "discuss every subject under the sun" in their sermons and editorials and neglect the teaching of Christianity, by Col. John T. Axton, chief of chaplains, United States Army, at the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church yesterday morning.

"The place and hour for public worship must not become forums for the discussion of every theme under the sun to the exclusion of religion if men are to be kept keenly interested in the church as an organization," said Col. Axton.

Instead of telling their congregations of the life of Jesus Christ, "who will show them what to become and how to become it," a great many clergymen today devote their entire sermons to discussions of the Chinese question, international relations, troubles between capital and labor and current railroad rates, Col. Axton declared.

He said that he believed that the church should "deal with such questions as the largest but should not place them before the teaching of religion."

Editors of religious papers also were flayed by Col. Axton for "devoting the major portion of their space to articles and editorials, sometimes partisan, and radical, not even remotely the business of the church."

"Many denominational papers and so-called 'journals of religion' may be defeating the purpose for which they were created by their constant discussion of Christianity, by their discussions of other subjects," said Col. Axton.

There is no occasion for apprehension in the statistics which show that actual church membership has decreased, Col. Axton said. He expressed the belief that many persons are staying away from church but are still good Christians. He pointed out that since the World War there has been a steady increase in the percentage of soldiers who attend church, but are still good Christians.

The fact that Sacco and Vanzetti are Italians and not Americans is responsible for the agitation created by their case, but are still good Christians. He said that the steady influence of the church is needed now to aid in the orderly process of the law.

the small entrance through which I had been forced to crawl on my stomach.

"At first I thought I could dig my way through with my shovel, but soon saw I couldn't."

He tells how he walked miles through the cave in search of a stream. Finally he became exhausted. He thought that was some time Tuesday or Wednesday. He awoke completely and realized that it was water.

He finally found a small stream and filled his carbide lamp. He says that while filling his lamp he lit a candle, and, noticing the flame bend over, he realized a current of air was near, and, after searching a while, he found a cave, at the opposite end of which he could see daylight. The cave, however, got so low he could not make his way out, and the entrance being very narrow, only 8 inches high. He attacked the hard dirt with his pocketknife, but gave up the task as hopeless.

Fights Mother Wildcat.

Realizing the shovel was his only chance he retraced his steps to the place where he was trapped by the slide, having left his pack and shovel there when he had gone in search of water. It took him all day and into the night he thought to make the trip back and as long to return to the exit.

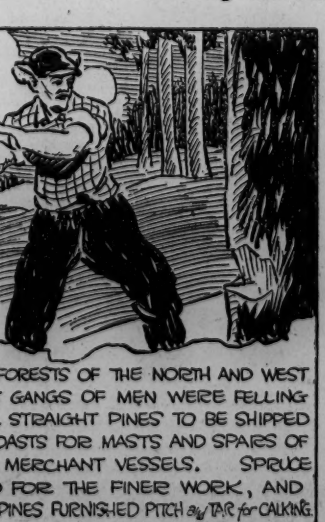

Upon returning it was dark and he ran into a mother wildcat and her young. Fighting one of them off with his shovel he retreated to await daylight. He was then able to make his way out of the cave and back to his camp.

With the coming of Sunday morning he retraced his steps to the cave, which he guided him back to Shell Mountain. At first he refused to see newspaper men because some cast doubt on the story, but he finally consented to tell the story.

The general improvement can be marked, says the report, the fact that in 1915 only eighteen State Boards of Health in the United States had divisions of sanitary engineering or employed sanitary engineers, whereas in 1926 all but four States—Nebraska, Nevada, Arizona and Wyoming—had established such divisions.

At the Theaters

PALACE METROPOLITAN

Inaugurating its new policy of Saturday openings, Loew's Palace Theater this week offers Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle, noted film star and not content with the office business, in person; Phil Spitalny's Orchestra, held over (and deservedly so), by popular request, and Norma Shearer, the M-G-M beauty, in "After Midnight," her latest release, in which, if the opinion of this writer is of any account, a little blonde named Gwen Lee captures stellar honors. The combination makes an excellent bill.

Getting down to the attractions in the numerical order in which they are listed, the water, started by a certain degree of curiosity, witnessed Fatty's Washington debut at two shows Saturday and again last night. His stand, Walter Cain, does the Texas Guinan act, bespeaking "a big hand for this boy" and "Fatty" gets it. Handcapped by a brace attack of laryngitis, the comedian could do little of his regular act, but proved a woe with the drums, Phil Spitalny and his orchestra kindly assisting. Incidentally, Phil has an entire new bill this week and his "Navy Blue" alone is worth the price of admission.

Norma looks very fetching, as usual, in the role of the hard-working, money-saving sister, who prefers to earn her own rather than accept favors from her half-brother, a nice young American, who, however, is not so much a hero as a comedian. The comedy is in evidence, and the opportunity to strut her fine feathers for a portion of the play. There is a thrilling auto accident and all the standard machinery is in evidence, used over and over by many producers, including Ed Whelan, of "Minute Movie" fame. There are the usual "I'm a trap" and "I'm a trap" pretty daughter, the trading post and the crooked factor, the treacherous knife-wielding woodsman, dogsleds pursued by pursuing and ferocious dogs, who chase up the villain. This last person, for something of a change is a sea captain and some of the events take place aboard his schooner. The main back and forth of the creatures play their part, and they never become tiresome.

Robert Frazer, handsome and strong and the young man who traps the villain, who beats up the wicked captain and behaves otherwise as heroes should. Walter Long, Mitchell Lewis and James Mason, who play the parts of the villain, the news reel includes splendid pictures of the start of the recent Dole airplane race to Hawaii, with good views of the Pacific and other interesting scenes, including the crash of one of them. There is a pretty good comedy picture, "The Day After Tomorrow," which is a light comedy, but more intimate glimpses from Hollywood.

On the stage the Rialto offers a pretty scenic novelty called "Only a Rose," with music by the young American organ, assisted by the orchestra, which makes its usual contributions.

LITTLE THEATER

One of the best efforts put forth by the U. F. company, and certainly one of the best pictures seen at the Little for a while is "Passion," a revival of the play which has been standing episodes in the life of Du Barry, the Motion Picture Guild's offering for this week at their Ninth Street theater.

The great courtesan, as played by Pola Negri is a vivid and enchanting figure, full of pretty tricks, and wild ways. She wins the affections of a number of men, rising in position all the while until at last she attains to the position of a queen. KEITH'S

Vaudeville is striking midseason form. The audience is getting the best of the Frank Fay offering, next to closing. Beginning with the Marguerite and Frank Gill act, the bill starts on a crescendo movement that ends in a crash—along about the end of the Frank Fay offering, next to closing.

WARDMAN PARK

Only in the theaters of the Motion Picture Guild is one privileged to see unusual productions like "The Cabinet of Doctor Caligari," of which one hears so much, but seldom has the chance to see. "Shattered," a German film which has the unique recommendation of the National Board of Review, is an instance. It was brought to town by the guild, shown at the Little Theater last week and is now at the Wardman Park Theater.

"Shattered" must be seen to be appreciated, as must the performance of Werner Kraus in the leading role. It is accompanied by that picturesque relic, "Carmen," the Essanay burlesque of the opera, made in 1916, with Charlie Chaplin, Ben Turpin and Edna Purviance in the cast. Other short reels and selected music complete the program.

"BOZO" SNYDER OPENS SEASON AT THE GAYETY

Gay Time on Ninth Street as Doors of Celebrated Old Playhouse Swing Open.

GALLERY "GODS" GALORE

Ninth street is Ninth street again. The Gayety Theater opened its regular season Saturday night. From all parts of the city they came, the regular patrons, to join in the festivities. Of the "old" Gayety Theater, the only vestige left is the name. The Gayety Theater each year is the only vestige. Then the boys come out of hiding, and the girls, too, for nowadays the Gayety has a subtitle: "The Ladies Club Theater."

As the opening attraction Manager Ira J. LaMotte—once host at the old Gayety—brought "Bozo" Snyder, in the realm of pantomime, and that includes the circus as well as the cinema, there is no one just like "Bozo" with his own show, "Bozo" occupies the spotlight from the opening curtain until the Elks' parade at Atlantic City—the "Bozo" parade. He is past master at the oldest art of the theater—facial expression.

"Bozo" has a following as great as the Gayety itself. They came Saturday night from as far off as Falls Church, Cherrydale, Alexandria and points south and west. They overhauled the top gallery, the mezzanine, orchestra, and stood three feet back of the last row like railbirds at Pimlico.

Nor was there any disappointment. The "Bozo" comedian furnishes lots of entertainment, with a comely chorus in many changes of costume, and all lovely, with a singing trio—Jim Brown, Frank Donaldson and Al Loring—about as good as they come, and various other features designed to take the old Columbia circuit out of the realm of burlesque and put it in the league of musical comedy production.

There is a cute little trick—Rae Davis—who belongs among the top comedians, a girl who sings and dances between scenes "Bozo" Snyder has designed for himself and his perennial partner, Sam Green, "feeder" of all the comic stars. The dancing team—Walter Kelley and Charles Judson, and a soubrette, Beatrice Tracy, who registers well with the gallery gods.

All told, Manager LaMotte has an opening which is bright and big and that will be matched this season only in the higher-priced houses—a whiz-bang show from beginning to end, with the "Bozo" comedian, "Bozo" Snyder, a classic in his own right.

White Gold. A story of three ranchmen and a girl, one of whom is her husband's mother. The playlet is a simple, direct tale grounded on hatred—hatred of a father-in-law for his daughter-in-law, culminating in tragedy. It is not an improbable story, and the manner in which it is handled makes it one of the best pictures seen here for some time.

Added attraction for the week consists of an organologue of Organist Arons, a Floyd Wheeler overture and a Kiro-gam featuring the Dole films.

3 HURT IN AUTO CRASH RESULTING FROM FLIGHT

Policeman Injured in Taking Men to Station, Following Arrest.

DRIVER EFFECTS ESCAPE

A mad dash for liberty by a motorist who succeeded in escaping early yesterday morning only after three men were injured and his automobile was demolished.

The injured were Motorcycle Policemen L. S. Graham, of the Thirteenth Precinct; Charles B. Wagner, 45 years old, of 1439 W street northwest, and Clarence W. Leary, 41 years old, both of 1432 U street northwest.

At 2 o'clock in the morning, Graham on his motorcycle, overtook an automobile traveling swiftly through the Brightwood section along Georgia avenue. He was escorting the car to the police station, south of the city, when the driver "stepped on it" and essayed his ride for freedom.

The race had coursed more than half a mile when a tire of the car, which was traveling at a speed of nearly 50 miles an hour, came off the wheel. The automobile, careened on its side, and crashed into the support of the Sixteenth Street Bridge.

Graham, in close pursuit, was thrown from his motorcycle with the vehicle. He was pinned beneath the wreckage of the car. Graham was injured about the back and leg and was treated at the police clinic.

The driver of the car freed himself from the wreckage and he was believed to have been injured. His identity is known and a warrant for his arrest will be sworn out.

Women Hurt as Auto And Street Car Crash

Two women were cut and bruised yesterday afternoon, when the automobile in which they were riding, collided with a Washington Railway & Electric Co. street car operated by Motorman J. W. Wells, at Seventeenth and H streets northwest. They were treated at Emergency Hospital.

Miss Irene Manlyette, 29 years old, 836 N street northwest, driver of the automobile, was cut on the right arm and bruised. Her companion, Miss Betty Gordon, 22, of 809 Ninth street northwest, was cut on the face and bruised.

Apartment Awnings Catch Fire From Auto

Fire originating from a short circuit in an automobile spread to the awnings of the apartment house at 1466 Columbia road northwest, early yesterday and created more excitement than it did damage. The screaming sirens of fire apparatus aroused the neighborhood and sent more than one scantily clad occupant of the apartment scurrying to the street.

The automobile, owned by George F. Cheselaine, a resident of the apartment house, 3047 Fort street, was spread to the awnings, according to police. The blaze was extinguished by No. 11 Fire Engine Co.

R. W. Geare Funeral Will Be Held Today

Funeral services for Reginald W. Geare, architect, who committed suicide at his home, 3047 Fort street, Saturday morning, will be held this morning at 11 o'clock at the funeral parlors of J. William Lee's Sons, 32 Pennsylvania avenue.

Mr. Geare, who designed the plans for the ill-fated Knickerbocker Theater, took his own life by inhaling gas from a gas stove. He had been in trouble and worry over the theater disaster of five years ago, in which 98 lost their lives, are said to have caused him to commit suicide.

Dog-Fight Peacemaker Is Treated at Hospital

Enos S. Newman, 50 years old, 2600 Thiden street northwest, yesterday essayed his role of peacemaker, and was injured, according to police.

Newman espied two dogs engaged in a fight near his home and attempted to separate them. He was bitten on the right hand and he was treated at Emergency Hospital for a bite on the right hand. His condition is not believed serious.

Arraignments Slated Today in Attack Case

Walter Oren Payne, who told police he lived at 304 Twelfth street northwest, will be arraigned in Police Court today on a charge of assaulting Mrs. Stanley Chladek, of 1014 H street northwest.

According to police, Payne knocked down the woman following an argument over her husband's infidelity. Mrs. Chladek went to Casualty Hospital and was treated for bruises. Patrolman Chester C. Stepp, of the Ninth Precinct, arrested Payne, who was freed in $500 bail.

Citizenship Stressed At Masonic Services

In speaking of the attacks upon public servants by malcontented statesmen, there are just as great men in public positions now as there ever were and that their integrity was as sincere.

Police Seek Girl, 17, Missing Two Days

Police last night were asked to conduct a search for a missing girl, 17 years old, who disappeared with her entire wardrobe from the family home at 1638 Nineteenth street northwest.

The girl's mother, Mrs. J. M. Jackson, told police that her daughter left home Saturday night with a man whom she had known about three months.

Capital Druggists At St. Louis Conclave

A number of Washington druggists will attend the national convention of the American Pharmaceutical Association, which opens today in St. Louis, Mo. The convention will appoint a committee to decide upon the site and design for the new $1,000,000 headquarters building for pharmacy in the United States, which will be erected in Washington, W. T. Kerfoot, Jr., local druggist, stated yesterday. Kerfoot's site has been chosen, but Mr. Kerfoot stated that the Washington druggists wanted it centrally located.

MARINE SHOT DEAD; NAVAL LABORATORY WORKER ARRESTED

C. Badgley Killed When O. Vanderford Meets Estranged Wife.

CHARGE OF MURDER IS FILED BY POLICE

Bullet Strikes Victim Entering Room as Brother-in-Law and Husband Fight.

Clarence Badgley, 22 years old, a private in the Marine Corps, was shot dead last night in the room of Otto Vanderford, at 440 C street southeast.

Vanderford, an employee at the Naval Research Laboratory, Bellevue, D. C., was charged with the murder and is being held at the Fifth Police Precinct.

Badgley, whose daily duty was to take care of the targets on the rifle range at the Naval Academy while the midshipmen learned to shoot, was in Washington on overnight leave. He was to have received an honorable discharge from the Marine Corps next Sunday, when his enlistment expires.

The shooting took place in the course of a struggle between Vanderford and his brother-in-law, Charles M. Bennett, also an Annapolis marine. Badgley had just entered the room when the shot was fired. He walked 15 feet down the hallway before he collapsed.

Vanderford's Wife Present.

At the time of the shooting Vanderford's estranged wife, Mae Vanderford, 22 years old, of Annapolis, also was in the room, and Anna Minter, 15 years old, and her sister Ernestine, 14 years old, were standing in the hallway.

According to the story told to Lieut. O. T. Davis and Precinct Detective T. J. Vanderford and his wife drew up an agreement on August 16, whereby they were to live apart and "not to molest or interfere with each other in any manner or form." Mrs. Vanderford thereupon went to Annapolis to live.

Yesterday, it was said, she received a telegram from her husband advising her to visit her sister, Melvina Bennett, who is in Providence Hospital recovering after an operation. She came over, accompanied by the Minter sisters, Bennett, Badgley and Ralph E. Thornton, a pharmacist's mate, first class, stationed at the Naval Academy.

Husband Shows Pistol.

They were met at the hospital, they said, by Vanderford, who suggested that they go to his rooms so that Mrs. Vanderford might collect some of the personal effects she had not taken with her when she left.

Members of the party told police that once in the room Vanderford exhibited a 32-caliber automatic pistol and threatened to kill his wife. Bennett lunged for him and the two struggled. It was related, in the struggle the gun was fired, the shot hitting Badgley, who had just entered the room, in the abdomen, severing an artery in his intestines.

Badgley staggered out of the room, but the struggle continued. The gun was again fired, the second shot going through Bennett's trousers leg. Finally Bennett gained possession of the gun, it was said.

Taken to Hospital Dead.

In the meantime, Thornton, who had remained outside in the automobile, heard the shot and ran into the house. He found Badgley, carried him to the car and drove him to the Naval Hospital where he died 20 minutes later.

Other occupants of the C street house, it was said, telephoned the police who took the entire party to the Fifth Precinct station.

Vanderford denies the story as related by the other. He told police that he was in his room when the group entered it and "jumped" him and that in the struggle the gun went off.

Mrs. Vanderford and the Minter sisters were taken to the House of Detention and the others to the Navy Yard where they will be held as material witnesses at the coroner's inquest today.

Badgley had served three years and eleven months in the Marines. His general 25 kpn was given as his mother who resides at Sheridan, Mich.

Passenger Steamer Disabled in Pacific

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 22 (A.P.)—Two hundred and sixty passengers on the steamship Prince Rupert, which broke her rudder when she struck an object in Seymour Narrows, 100 miles north of Vancouver, were transferred early today to the steamer Cardena, wireless advices received here said.

The Prince Rupert is now lying in Plummer Bay, where she was towed by the Cardena.

MRS. CHAPLIN AWARDED $625,000 AND CHILDREN

$200,000 Trust Fund Also to Be Created for Sons' Support.

WIFE CHARGES CRUELTY

Los Angeles, Aug. 22 (A.P.)—Lita Grey Chaplin was granted an interlocutory decree of divorce from Charles Spencer Chaplin at a brief court session here today after the film comedian had agreed to pay his girl wife $625,000 as a property settlement and grant her permanent custody of their two small sons.

Into an hour's session of Judge Walter Guerin's court, at which Mrs. Chaplin played the leading part, were rolled the final gestures to the eight months of marital strife. Chaplin was not present.

A property settlement reached out of court was announced by Edwin E. Murray, chief of counsel for the suing wife, and Mrs. Chaplin made her own routine case of cruelty from the witness stand. A few corroborative witnesses were sworn, testified briefly and the decree was granted. A year must elapse before the final decree is granted.

The agreement between Chaplin and his wife provides for the creation of a trust fund of $200,000, the income to be paid Mrs. Chaplin for the support and education of the children. The principal is to go to the children when the younger attains the age of 35.

The trust fund is in addition to the $625,000 Chaplin agreed to pay Mrs. Chaplin. It was understood that Chaplin also agreed to pay $10,000 as expenses of his wife during their separation; $22,000 as receiver's costs and fees; $2,000 court costs.

Man Dies, Seven Hurt As Air Liner Crashes

Sevenoaks, Kent, England, Aug. 22 (A.P.)—A mechanic was killed and seven passengers were slightly injured when a Dutch air liner, bound from Croydon Field, London, for Amsterdam, crashed in a field near here this morning.

The rudder of the machine was torn loose by a strong wind, and apparently only skillful manipulation by the pilot averted a catastrophe. The plane struck between two trees, against one of which the mechanic, named Brinklaux, was crushed. Most of the eleven passengers on board were Dutch or English. There were no Americans.

3 Young Men Stage Daylight Bank Holdup

Austin, Tex., Aug. 22 (A.P.)—Three well-dressed young men held up the University Bank here today of about $5,000 and escaped in a touring car later identified as one licensed to a San Antonio company.

The robbers sauntered in, made four patrons of the bank lie flat on the floor, face up, and then took the available cash and rode away.

CHAMOIS BAG CLEW IN WOMAN'S DEATH

Robbery Theory Held After Body Is Found in New Jersey River.

Cape May Courthouse, N. J., Aug. 22 (A.P.)—A torn chamouis jewel bag is the main clew in a mystery confronting police here with the discovery of the body of a well-dressed woman in Tuckahoe River. The body was found in shallow water by William Doughty, of Somers Point, while crabbing. The police are investigating the theory of robbery for a motive.

The woman was dressed in a sport suit with an English cut topcoat. She was about 45 years old, had black bobbed hair, gray over the temples, and blue eyes.

The body was only partly submerged, as though it had been carried in by the tide. It is being held here for identification.

2 DISTRICT GOLFERS STAR IN FIRST ROUND OF TITLE MATCHES

Standifer Gets 75 and Mackenzie 76; Jersey Boy Low With 71.

VOIGT HAS 80; UPSET BY RULING ON BALLS

Huffy, 80, Newton, 81, McCarthy and Houghton, 82, and Stevinson, 83.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST (Staff Correspondent of The Post.)

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 22.—When the tournament started this morning, eight contestants who were registered either from District clubs or members of local organizations had their chance to qualify among the 32 players who will be paired for match play Wednesday morning. When all the scores had been turned in as the sun was setting this evening only two of the coterie had made their calling and election sure. Guy M. Standifer, of the Columbia Club, who scored 75, and Roland R. Mackenzie, also of the Columbia Club, with a 76, were the fortunate survivors of the day's ordeal.

Mackenzie, standing on the sixteenth tee with three 4s for a 72, saw the door wide open for tying with Phillips Findeley, of the Shinnock Club, for the low score of the day, but finished with two 5s and a 6. The eighteenth hole was particularly disastrous. His drive from the eighteenth tee carried the ball fully 300 yards across the road to the lawn in front of the clubhouse, leaving him only a maddening niblick pitch to the green, 75 yards away. He played the shot too strongly, and the ball rolled across the green and down a steep declivity. On the green in 3, he then took 3 putts for a 6.

Standifer was the star performer of the Washington aggregation, for the 75 strokes which he totalled placed him high among the leaders although including three putt greens and three trap shots. On the fourth, fifth and sixth holes, however, he scored three birdies in a row, 4, 3 and 2, running down a 6-footer for a 4 on the fourth and holding out from a distance of 2 feet and 15 feet respectively on the other two holes. The only two 6s on his card were due to encounters with traps.

On the first hole he pitched his approach into the sand and took two strokes to get the ball out.

Death Laid to Gin, But Seller Is Freed

Chicago, Aug. 22 (A.P.)—Alcoholic poisoning from gin purchased in the drugstore of Matt McAnany caused the death of Asa J. Harper, 21, a coroner's jury decided today, but the verdict exonerated McAnany and his employees who had been held in connection with the youth's death.

Harper died May 28 in the apartment of a friend, a University of Chicago student, during a drinking party. McAnany's attorney told the deputy coroner holding the inquest that a settlement had been made with Mrs. Pearl Harper, the boy's mother. An analysis of the gin showed it to have been free of poison.

Bishop Who Attended Stag Hunt Criticized

London, Aug. 22 (A.P.)—The Bishop of Taunton, the Rev. Charles Fane de Salis, is being taken to task by some of his brother clergymen for attending a stag hunt, although, it was stated, he was not in at the kill.

"It is rather disconcerting," writes Canon Wrigley, vicar of Clitheroe, "to read of the lord bishop's presence, clad, we are informed, in riding breeches and violent cravat, and mounted upon a powerful bay."

"I venture to think it is deplorable that Episcopal sanctions should be given to this sport when we are approaching a period in church history when much depends upon the respect and reverence which bishops can command."

Libel Suit of Pastor Demands $100,000

New York, Aug. 22 (A.P.)—Suit against the Truth Seeker, a New York Freethinker weekly, asking $100,000 for alleged libel, brought by the Rev. Grant W. Spear, pastor of the Central Christian Church of Toledo, O., was disclosed in Supreme Court today, when counsel for the clergyman asked the court to strike out the defendant's answer to the charges.

Publication of an article by the weekly periodical, Mr. Spear's complaint charges, which was circulated among persons who were acquainted with him subjected him to ridicule and scorn with the result that his acquaintances "avoided him as an unworthy character."

RIOTERS IN GENEVA ATTACK U. S. SHOPS; RAID MOVIE HOUSES

League Palace Windows Smashed by Sacco-Sympathizers.

BUENOS AIRES MOB STONES AMERICANS

Parades in London, Mexico City and Berlin Protest Radicals' Execution.

London (Tuesday), Aug. 23 (A.P.)—The Geneva correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Co. described last night's rioting in Geneva as serious. He says the city was in the hands of 5,000 rioters, who attacked and severely damaged American shops, raided motion picture houses, where American films were being shown, seizing films starring Douglas Fairbanks, Mary Pickford and Norma Talmadge. The films were taken to the streets and destroyed.

Crowds stormed the police station, the correspondent adds. He says many of the rioters used revolvers and that one person was killed and 25 wounded.

Damage League Palace.

Geneva, Aug. 22 (A.P.)—Sacco and Vanzetti manifestos demolished the windows of the great hall of the library of the League of Nations Palace tonight. The rioting followed a protest meeting organized by Socialists. The mob first marched on the American consulate, but the police beat them off.

The manifestos then took vengeance by attacking the American agency of two picture theaters showing American films. In the struggle with the police a shot was fired by some unknown hand and killed a bystander. Fire hose playing streams of water on the crowds eventually dispersed them.

Police barred the approaches to the American consulate as crowds were returning from a great Sacco-Vanzetti demonstration, and this led to street scenes of considerable disorder. The consulate stands at the junction of five roads, and the crowds, bottled up, soon began shouting, whistling and milling. Numerous arrests were made. There was no violence to any marked degree, as the demonstrators, for the most part, were good humored.

Hopeless of Clemency.

The meeting was held as the workers quitted their work, and was attended by 5,000 with 2,000 others gathered outside the hall. Several Socialist councillors were on the platform. The speakers, while apparently hopeless of clemency for the condemned men, called for a continuance of class war.

A demonstration lasting about an hour was held by several hundred persons outside the American vice consulate in Lausanne at noon. After singing the International, the crowd dispersed and the street was reopened to traffic.

WOMAN FOUND DEAD; SHOT TWICE IN BACK

Florida's Wife Had Left Hotel With Man; Three Are Arrested.

Tampa, Fla., Aug. 22 (A.P.)—Three men were in jail tonight as a result of a police investigation of the murder of Mrs. Pearl Day, 36, whose body was found here yesterday with two bullet wounds in the back.

Walter Wells, Joe Fernandez, and Jack Lala, were arrested this afternoon after C. W. Day had identified the body as that of his wife. Officers announced they expected other arrests soon.

The body of the woman was found yesterday by two men driving through the woods to inspect an orange grove, but identification was not established until today when the husband viewed the body at the morgue after reading that the woman wore a ring engraved with the initials "C. D. to C. P. J., September 14, 1908."

Day believed his wife had gone to Orlando, Fla., with the wife of a friend of his, he told police, and had heard nothing of her since Friday, the day she departed. Investigation disclosed that a man called for Mrs. Day at a hotel last Friday and that she departed with him and possibly others, officers said. They declined to divulge the name of the man with whom she is said to have left the hotel, but said he was not yet in custody. The Days have a son, 16, and a daughter, 10.

3 Buried, 3 Injured As House Collapses

RADICALS DIE FOR MURDER AFTER VAIN 7-YEAR FIGHT TO BLOCK THEIR EXECUTION

NICOLA SACCO.

BARTOLOMEO VANZETTI.

IMPORTANT DATES IN SACCO CASE

Boston, Aug. 22 (A.P.)—Important dates in the Sacco-Vanzetti case are: April 15, 1920—Murder of Frederick A. Parmenter, paymaster of Slater & Morrill Co. shoe manufacturers, and his guard, Alexander Berardelli, at South Braintree, Mass. May 5, 1920—Bartolomeo Vanzetti and Nicola Sacco arrested in Brockton. September 11, 1920—Sacco and Vanzetti indicted. May 31, 1921—Trial starts at Dedham. July 14, 1921—Both found guilty of first degree murder. December 24, 1921—Judge Thayer denies new trial motion. January 10, 1926—Celestino Madeiros preceded them to the electric chair by a few minutes, the well-known radicals following as rapidly as the execution routine would permit. Madeiros died at 12:09 a. m., for the murder of a Wrentham Bank cashier. Sacco and Vanzetti were executed for the murder of a paymaster and his guard at Braintree more than seven years ago. Sacco was dead at 12:19 and Vanzetti at 12:26. Small Army Guards Prison. Inside and outside of the high prison wall stood a small army of armed guards. Waiting also were the press wires to inform the world that the long fight to save the men was at an end. The fight in behalf of the men continued until the last minute. Both Sacco and Vanzetti made brief speeches in the death chamber before they took their seats in the chair. Vanzetti protesting his innocence to the last. Sacco, pale but steady, shouted in Italian: "Long live anarchy!" as he sat down in the chair. Then, in broken English, he went on: "Farewell, my wife and child and all my friends." The straps were being adjusted as he said his last words: "Good evening, gentlemen! Farewell, mother!" Vanzetti is the Calmest. Vanzetti entered the death chamber the calmest of all the three men. Shaking hands with two of the guards as he came through the door of the execution chamber, he walked unassisted to the chair and seated himself. As the guards began the hasty adjustment of straps to his head and body he began a speech. In the broken English that characterized his dramatic plea for "justice" when sentence was passed on him in Dedham on April 9, he declared: "I wish to tell you I am innocent and never connected with any crime, but some time some sin. I thank you for everything you have done for me. I am innocent of all crime not only of this one but all. I am an innocent man." "Then just as the guards slipped the straps and headcap in place, cutting off further speech, he shouted: "I wish to forgive some people for what they are now doing to me." Madeiros Is Expressionless. A moment after the official witnesses entered the death chamber Madeiros was led in between two guards. The youth, who had won five respites because of his confession that a gang with which he was connected committed the South Braintree murders, was stolid and expressionless. His eyes wandered about the little group of witnesses as he was strapped to the chair, but he said nothing. Madeiros came in at 12:02:47. At 12:03:37 the shock was applied. He was pronounced dead at 12:09:35. Then came Sacco. Apart from the prison pallor, the little shoe worker, who has become an international figure, showed no sign of his long hunger strike. He walked erect between the guards, his eyes flashing brightly about the group in the death chamber as he came. He sat down in the chair, and, as the guards began to attach the straps he shouted in a voice that rang strangely through the little white room: "Viva l'anarchia! (Long live anarchy)." Farewell to His Friends. Almost without pause he continued, this time in broken English: "Farewell, my wife and child, and all my friends." Fish Peddler, Calmest of Trio, Says He Is Innocent of the Crime Charged.

Charlestown State Prison, Boston, Aug. 23 (A.P.)—Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti shortly after midnight this morning paid the penalty of death exacted by the State for murder.

Celestino Madeiros preceded them to the electric chair by a few minutes, the well-known radicals following as rapidly as the execution routine would permit.

Madeiras died at 12:09 a. m., for the murder of a Wrentham Bank cashier.

FIRE AFTER BLAST BLOCKS DOWNTOWN TRAFFIC FOR HOUR

Building Wrapped in Flames
Following Explosion at 1206
Pennsylvania Ave.

HOSE TRESTLE FINALLY ALLOWS CARS TO PASS

Damage Estimated at $5,000 in Structure Opposite Engine House.

Fire, following an explosion on the second floor of the three-story structure at 1206 Pennsylvania avenue northwest shortly after 9 o'clock last night, caused damage estimated at $5,000 and tied up street car traffic on Pennsylvania avenue for nearly half an hour.

The first and second floors of the building, which has a rear entrance on D street, is occupied by the Mount Vernon Restaurant, a fruit store, and a shoe shine parlor. The third floor is used for storage.

Firemen Hear Blast.
Firemen of No. 18 Engine Company, directly across the street from the D street entrance, heard the explosion, saw the flames and put their apparatus into service. An alarm was turned in by Frank Lovason, 1878 Park road northwest, proprietor of a nearby store.

Sgt. W. H. Carlin of the First Precinct and several policemen were standing in front of the First Precinct Station, nearby, when the fire started.

Street car traffic on Pennsylvania avenue was blocked for nearly half an hour until firemen could erect a hose trestle. Traffic on the Washington

Virginia Railway Co., whose terminal is at Twelfth and D streets, was blocked for two hours.

MIST COSTS 3 LIVES IN AUTO-TRAIN CRASH

Youths, Struck at Crossing, Die on Reaching Lynchburg Hospital.

Danville, Va., Aug. 22. Today's triple murder in Pittsylvania county, where Ollie Miller, 20, Halley Hagood, 19, and Henry Dunham, 18, were killed by a Southern train near Hurt, was ascribed to the dense white mist that pervaded this section. The youths' car was caught squarely on a grade crossing near Alta Vista and all that remained of it when the train stopped was fragments of the car.

Hagood was found pinned on the pilot of the engine, 300 yards from the wreck, when the train stopped. The youths, sons of Pittsylvania farmers, were employed by a construction company at Alta Vista and were going to work.

Conway Pannell, a negro, driving a few yards behind the trio, said the accident happened with dramatic suddenness, the train running at high speed, swerving out of the fog for a square hit of the moving auto. Trainmen placed the victims on the train, but all died soon after reaching a Lynchburg hospital.

Differential Defense Committee Is Named

Baltimore, Aug. 22 (A.P.).—The personnel of a committee of eight that will direct the fight to maintain the freight differential enjoyed by Baltimore and other South Atlantic ports over New York and Boston was announced today by G. H. Pender, director of the export and import bureau of the Baltimore Association of Commerce.

In addition to Mr. Pender, who is chairman, the committee is as follows: G. W. Stewart Henderson, traffic manager of the Baltimore Chamber of Commerce; W. A. Cox, director of the port of Norfolk; H. J. Wagner, Norfolk-Fortmouth freight-traffic commission; W. D. Dimmitt, Norfolk & Western Railway; R. C. Creager, Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad; W. S. Burton, Western Maryland Railway; G. S. Wise, Canton Railroad.

JURY STUDIES PROPERTY FOR HYATTSVILLE BRIDGE

Condemnation of Lillard Land for Crossing Span Is Argued.

MAGRUDER CASE TODAY

Elimination of the grade crossing at Hyattsville, long sought by the citizens of Maryland and the District of Columbia, came one step nearer realization yesterday when a condemnation jury was sworn in at Hyattsville to set the value on the first piece of property to be affected by the proposed bridge over the tracks.

The proposal to eliminate the grade crossing by constructing a bridge over the Baltimore & Ohio tracks east of the Washington-Baltimore boulevard would infringe on the property of John Frank Lillard, William B. Magruder, Harry Sonneberg and George N. Bowen. A year's negotiations for right-of-way through these properties having failed, condemnation proceedings were instituted.

The jury selected to consider Mr. Lillard's property consisted of Henry L. Morris, member of the House of Delegates; William A. Middleton, lumber dealer; Floyd W. Moxley, mayor of Brentwood; Charles G. Church, clerk; A. M. McFadden, real estate dealer; Roy T. Fowkes, engineer; James W. Hill, clerk; Harry Dobb, printer; Charles Reichelt, John H. Traband, clerk; H. H. Tibert, farmer, and Richard Coffey, farmer.

Robert Archer, assistant attorney general, made the opening argument for the State Road Commission. After stressing the necessity of eliminating the grade crossing and explaining why the bridge should be built at the site selected, Mr. Archer detailed just how Mr. Lillard's two 20-foot front lots and his office building and restaurant would be affected. He asserted that the restaurant would not be affected but that the office building would have to be moved back 30 feet at a cost of about $1,500 and that this would be all the damage.

Mr. Lillard contended the move would mean the loss of his property on both sides and that, after moving it, his office building could not be easily seen. He predicted also that with the building of the bridge a "no parking sign" would be placed there detracting from his restaurant business. He claimed that he is entitled to much more than the sum named by Mr. Archer.

BOY SCOUTS RETURN FROM QUANTICO CAMP 2 DAYS, ON SEARCH FOR DOLE VICTIMS

Quest Being Maintained by 40
Ships and Air Force Patrols
Over Pacific.

NOT "CHANCE IN 1,000" HELD FOR ERWIN PLANE

Not Even an Oil Spot in the Area From Which Last Signals Came.

(Associated Press.)

The Navy will continue until Thursday its search in the Pacific Ocean for the lost San Francisco-Hawaii aviators, it was announced yesterday.

The search, begun by about 40 naval vessels almost a week ago, was to have ended tonight, but in view of the disappearance of the Dallas Spirit, which set out to search for the Miss Doran and Golden Eagle, it was decided to continue the quest two more days.

Admiral Eberle, Acting Secretary, has so ordered Rear Admiral Jackson, commander in chief of the battle fleet. The destroyer Hazelwood, sent out to search for the Dallas Spirit, yesterday reported to the Navy Department that the Hazelwood had not picked up any of the 40 square miles each, and in the commander's opinion the plane was not floating in that area.

The Hazelwood was sent out yesterday to search for the plane and resume the search.

Federal Action Is Seen.
San Francisco, Calif., Aug. 22 (A.P.).—While Navy boats and planes searched under an extended "zero hour," Secretary of the Navy, C. G. Messersmith, in Washington agreed today that some Federal move must be made to prevent the loss of the two missing planes. He declared that with the help of the Golden Eagle, Miss Doran and the Dallas Spirit.

Admiral Eberle, Acting Secretary of the Navy, ordered 40 naval vessels searching the Pacific for the missing fliers, to continue their efforts until Thursday. The original plans were that the Hazelwood should officially terminate tomorrow night, a week from the date of the start of the Miss Doran and the Golden Eagle in the Dole race.

Extension was made by the Navy Department, which said that the disappearance of the Dallas Spirit, piloted by Capt. William Erwin, of Dallas, Tex., and navigated by A. H. Eichwald, of Hayward, Calif., which apparently dove into the sea nearly 700 miles west of San Francisco Friday night after flashing an S O S call on its radio.

Secretary Wilbur was quoted as agreeing that "some step must be taken by the Federal Government to prevent future loss of lives in long distance stunt flights."

The Secretary said that the President had some power in this respect, but he said he was not sure that this was sufficient to cover the situation.

He declared it was inevitable that some action will be taken "to prevent needless loss of life."

That Navy men conducting the hunt for the missing men in the Dallas Spirit held little hope for their rescue was reflected by Lieut. Comdr. William C. Toole, of the destroyer Hazelwood, who said:

"I do not think there is one chance in a thousand that the Dallas Spirit will ever be found. The Hazelwood, in command of Commander E. H. Conover, is searching for the plane 3,200 square miles about a point where she gave up her last position and in that space there was not a piece of float-sam—not even an oil spot."

Five Destroyers Refuel.
The destroyers Hazelwood, Hull, Kidd, Forenhol and Corry were in San Francisco restocking their ladders and refueling, preparatory to proceeding back out to sea to join the airplane carrier Langley, some 500 miles off shore. The Langley has been dispatched to search for the plane over a wide area.

Reports from Honolulu bore no more hope. The Associated Press correspondent at the island headquarters declared, "Another day passed without developments in the search for the Dole fliers."

Ten submarines and their mother ship, the Widgeon, returned to Pearl Harbor from a long cruise down the westward side of the islands and back to the Hawaiian Islands, where they were empty fuel tanks and ladders.

Capt. Frank C. Martin, in charge of submarines, reported to Rear Admiral John D. McDonald that they saw "nothing but blank ocean."

Admiral McDonald ordered Capt. Martin to refuel and replenish his ships, presumably in preparation for further searching.

Capt. Martin reported that the seas about the islands were so rough that a light at night, but investigation proved it to be nothing. Another night man reported a flare, and investigation disclosed this to be a star with clouds flying across.

The submarine tender Holland and submarine boats searched the area south of Kauai to latitude 21, while seaplane patrols explored the ocean east and north of Kauai.

Sampans (Japanese fishing boats) were checked upon their return to the islands. In an effort to find at least one that might have sighted a bit of wreckage or some sign of the missing fliers, Jack Frost and Gordon Scott, of the Golden Eagle; Miss Mildred Doran, John (Aug) Pedlar and Lieut. Vilas R. Knoppe, of the biplane Miss Doran, while from mid-Pacific was awaited word from the vessels searching for the missing fliers.

That possibly Capt. Erwin and his navigator, Eichwald, might have escaped from the "tail spin" they told of by radio and were floating safely aboard their life raft.

Boy Scouts Return From Quantico Camp

Fifty Washington Boy Scouts returned yesterday morning after two weeks' training at Camp Neill, Quantico, Va., marched to the reflecting pool at the Lincoln Memorial and were inspected by Maj. Gen. John A. Lejeune, commander of the Marine Corps.

East Lansdowne Troop, Boy Scouts of America, also was inspected by Gen. Lejeune. They were on their way to Camp Quantico. About 15 of the Washington boys accompanied the Pennsylvania scouts back to the camp, while the others returned to their homes.

Ritchie Urges Parley To Save Oyster Beds

Baltimore, Aug. 22 (A.P.).—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie today wrote Gov. Harry S. Truman of Virginia suggesting a conference be held between Maryland and Virginia officials to discuss the rehabilitation of oyster beds in the Potomac River.

Sweeping State conservation commissioner, reported "prompt action is imperative if the beds are to be saved from absolute depletion." He said Virginia has no provision for replacing shells in beds and that Maryland was unable to do it all.

GUARDSMEN'S BRIDGE NEARING COMPLETION

Span at Fort Humphreys Expected to Be Finished
Today.

Special to The Washington Post.

Fort Humphreys, Aug. 22.—The bridge which District National Guardsmen of the 121st Engineers have been building here was nearing completion today, and the prospect was that it would be finished tomorrow.

The bridge, which is about 108 feet long and about 9 feet high, is broad enough and strong enough to permit a column of troops and heavy trucks to pass over it. Officers say that the guardsmen deserve high praise for the speed with which they have put up the bridge. All materials were taken from the woods here.

Rain fell again this afternoon, and it was necessary to call off the formal guard mount and parade of the second battalion. Company B took over the post from Company A. Lieut. Walter A. Knight is officer of the day and Second Lieut. Alfred Jorgensen is officer of the guard.

France to Reduce Occupation Troops

Paris, Aug. 22 (A.P.).—The "re-adaptation to circumstances" of the allied troops of occupation in the Rhineland is on the verge of conclusion, it was semi-officially learned at the Quai d'Orsay tonight.

Conversations between Great Britain and France have been going on for several weeks concerning decreasing the forces of occupation in the Rhine, but it is now down to a final figure of 50,000 within a fortnight.

Man Dies as Dynamite Explodes Under Couch

Mauch Chunk, Pa., Aug. 22 (A.P.).—Joseph Benedictine Bulat, 35, was killed when dynamite was exploded under his last night.

The explosive was concealed under a lounge on the porch of Bulat's home at 1214 Columbia street, and was laid from the outside of the house.

Bulat was lying on the lounge and was startled when the dynamite exploded. He was killed instantly. The police said that the dynamite was placed under the lounge by the police for the explosion.

Body of War Colonel, Missing Year, Is Found

San Francisco, Aug. 22 (A.P.).—The body of Jacob E. Brandt, a colonel in the World War, was found in the Sierra Nevada mountains, high in the Sierras, June 12, 1926, was found yesterday by a telegraph company employee tramping through the forest.

The American Legion State convention at Susanville last summer voted a reward to any one who would find Col. Brandt, who lived in Oakland and was a California service engineer for the Nathan Manufacturing Co. of New York. A reward for finding him was also posted by his employers.

Man Caught in Store Enters Guilty Plea

A plea of guilty was entered yesterday by Benjamin Owens, colored, who a few days ago was discovered by children in the basement of the Kober Co., Fifth and K streets northwest, attempting to break open a safe with a hammer, ice pick and screw driver.

He appeared before Judge Mattingly in Police Court, who ordered him held under $3,000 bond for the grand jury on a charge of housebreaking. He was arrested by Policeman William D. Haislip, of the Sixth Precinct.

OYSTER MEN TO TEST NEW PACKERS LAW

Marylanders Oppose Returning 10 Per Cent of Shells to Commission.

Special to The Washington Post.
Cambridge, Md., Aug. 22.—Forty members of the Tri-State Seafarers Association met here today to take steps to resist a law passed at the session of the Maryland legislature to compel oyster packers to deliver to the State Conservation Commission 10 per cent of the shells from oysters packed by them. The law also transfers power of issuing licenses from clerks to the circuit courts to the counties.

As Calvin Trice, previously retained as counsel by the association, recommended that a test case be made to have the law declared unconstitutional, that a packer apply to the court clerk here for a test case he made to apply to the conservation commission, using a form that shall not promise 10 per cent of the shells, as does the commission's form. Upon refusal of the court to grant a license, the court will be asked to issue a mandamus to compel the issuing of such permit.

It is expected that by this means the question will be brought before the Maryland Court of Appeals for a decision on the constitutionality of the act.

PLAINE ARGUES ITS ARLINGTON COUNTY G. O. P. NOMINATION

Will Resign Postoffice Position to Run for Clerk of Court.

COMMITTEE COMPLETES PLANS FOR CAMPAIGN

Zoning Laws Praised Before Clarendon Association; Another Highway Drive.

ARLINGTON COUNTY
BUREAU OF THE POST.

Robert C. Plaine, last night announced at a special meeting of the Arlington County Republican committee that he will accept the Republican nomination for the office of clerk of the court.

Plaine, who for the last 22 years has held a position in the United States Postoffice Department, said that he will resign that position and make a vigorous campaign. "This position offers splendid opportunity to give service and an act as a desire to serve my country," he said.

"Having served as an examiner for the railway mail service, with many years' experience in clerical work, with a business college training, I feel well qualified to fill the office," he said.

The party having a full ticket in the field, the committee at their meeting last night completed plans for the campaign.

Headed by a ticket as announced by County Chairman J. G. Peper is M. G. Ely for the State senate, Louis A. MacMahon for the house of delegates, Robert E. Plaine for clerk of the court, Lawrence Michael for county treasurer, Edgar W. Humphrey for commonwealth's attorney, Eugene Doyle for commission of revenue, Armistead F. Driscoll for sheriff, supervisor from Arlington district, B. M. Hendrick for constable from Arlington district, Frank Thompson; Carl Marshall, H. A. Irwin and H. H. Blanford for justice of the peace from Arlington district, and G. H. McCullough, overseer of the poor, for supervisor from Jefferson district. William Kleystuber, for constable from Jefferson district, and W. H. Bittender and W. H. Crump, and for overseer of the poor, W. R. Rose, for supervisor from Washington district, C. C. Donaldson, for justice of the peace, George Rollings, and for overseer of the poor, C. E. Vermillion.

Speaking before the Clarendon Citizens Association last night, Maj. E. W. Cushing, chairman of the zoning commission, declared that there is nothing that means more to the future development of Arlington County than the properly zoning of the county into districts as is now done in Maryland and the District of Columbia. "The advantage that Arlington County has over many other sections is that the question of zoning is now before us before the county is completely built up," he said.

"The commission, after a full study of the problem, will submit to each of the citizens associations a map covering their area and request that it be marked showing the class of buildings that are desired in that district," he asserted. "And not only will we request this information, but we want the hearty cooperation of the citizens in the entire county. The citizens of the county will be properly carried out."

President L. C. McNemar declared that "the cry of Arlington County that we are not paying the taxes that we are now doing is now before us before the county is completely built up."

Indorsement was given to the resolution offered by C. R. Taylor that efforts be made looking to the modification of the service regulations which would permit Federal employees living in Arlington County to take an active part in local politics. This resolution has been indorsed by the Ashton Heights Citizens Association.

Miss Elsie Bushong, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Bushong, of Clarendon, is a candidate in the election for beauty contest to be held August 31 by the Arlington Post No. 139, American Legion, for the choosing of Miss Arlington to represent the county at the State convention at Newport News.

A movement for the launching of an extensive membership campaign and the starting of a united and definite drive for the proposed 200-foot boulevard and other arterial highways was thought necessary for the future development of Arlington County and was launched at a meeting called for tonight at the Arlington County Courthouse by the Arlington branch of the National Boulevard Association.

Members of the national organization will speak. The committee, in an effort to have every community in the county represented at the meeting, have sent notices to all civic organizations asking that they send a representative to the meeting.

Funeral services for Richard E. Crane, who died at the Alexandria Hospital Sunday night, will be conducted at his home at Cottage Park, Arlington County, tomorrow at 2 o'clock by the Rev. Wallace Branham, of the Alexandria Methodist Episcopal Church, assisted by the Rev. John Hardesty, of the Del Ray Methodist Church. Burial will be in the Presbyterian Cemetery at Alexandria.

While skating in front of her home in non Village Sunday night, Carmon Billington, 9-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald V. Billington, fell, breaking her right arm.

Arrangements for the tournament in connection with "Arlington Day," to be held under the auspices of the Arlington Athletic Association tomorrow, have been completed. Twenty riders, numbering among them the finest in the county, will take part. The stars are E. Wade, James W. Head, James G. Peper, and E. M. Palmer. George W. Ferguson will act as marshal.

In the evening the program will include dancing and the winning of the trophy by the victorious knight of the tournament. Candidates for county officers will speak. Thirty-four now are candidates with more expected, and the committee is at work now may be able to speak without running the program into the early morning hours.

The Arlington County Democratic committee will meet Friday night at the office of Secretary R. Blakely James to plan for an extensive campaign in the interest of the Democratic candidates for county offices at the fall election.

Charged with reckless driving cost Grant Coleman $20 in the Arlington Police Court yesterday. Fred Smith, charged with operating an automobile with a dead tag, was fined $12.50, including costs. Richard Roas, charged with disorderly conduct, was fined $14.25.

Navy Plane, Heavily Loaded, Wins Record

Another aviation record was claimed yesterday by the Navy Department, which has credited the Navy fliers a total of sixteen world records. The record was made Thursday by Lieut. Byron C. Connell, at San Diego, Calif., when he flew more than 3,000 meters, or 9,842 feet with a payload, and in this case, weighing 7,726 pounds. The record is for the heaviest payload carried to 3,000 meters.

The test was conducted under the supervision of the Federation Aeronautique Internationale, and the barograph installed on his FN-10 seaplane has been sent to the Bureau of Standards for calibration. Pending announcement of the barograph test and acceptance of the record by the federation the record is unofficial. His record height was 8,975 feet.

Soldier Lands Blazing Plane, Puts Out Fire

Shenandoah, Town, Aug. 22 (A.P.).—Sgt. Haynes had been ordered to Denison, Iowa, to take Clarence Chamberlain, New York-Germany flyer, to Omaha for tomorrow's wedding celebration. Haynes was not injured and extinguished the fire after he landed.

AGED MAN'S SLAYER REPORTED CAPTURED

Negro, Seized by Posse, Denie Killing Merchant and Wounding Woman.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 22.—According to word reaching here tonight, Hezekiah Smith, negro, sought in connection with the slaying of James H. Allen, aged merchant at Nicks Post, this county, on August 5, and the serious wounding of Mrs. William J. Rothwell, Allen's partner in business, was captured this afternoon by a posse under Sheriff Melton, of Greene county.

The negro's arrest followed a tip given authorities by Joe Garnett, colored, reported to have gained Smith's confidence at a party last night. Under arrest, Smith disclosed all knowledge of the murder and repudiated his alleged confession to Garnett. He was placed in the Greene County jail for safekeeping.

Allen was shot down in his store when he resisted the demands of a hold-up. Mrs. Rothwell was later beaten into unconsciousness on the porch of her home near the store. Her skull was fractured. She is expected to die.

Dawes Not Candidate For 1928, He Writes

Cincinnati, Ohio, Aug. 22 (A.P.).—Vice President Charles G. Dawes, in a letter to Douglas T. Atkinson, judge advocate of the Young American Union, secret non-partisan political organization, relating to the possibility that he might run for President said, "I am not a candidate for the office."

The Young American Union, through Mr. Atkinson, recently pledged its support to Mr. Dawes. A letter if he should run for President.

"I want you to accept my thanks for your letter and for the kindly interest shown in me," he wrote. "I am, however, not a candidate for the nomination," the letter dated from the Vice President's chambers in Washington and signed by Mr. Dawes read.

Press Club Building Described Over Radio

The National Press Building, now being completed at Fourteenth and F streets northwest, was described last night from radio station WMAL by Louis Ludlow, president of the club, as the "pride of the Fourth Estate."

Mr. Ludlow said that the building is the largest non-Government building in Washington. It will occupy the entire top floor, radio station WRC will make its home in the building, the Fox Theater will be located there, and the top 200 rooms will be occupied by Washington correspondents, he said.

Couple to Face Trial As Slayers Thursday

Greenville, S. C., Aug. 22 (A.P.).—Trial of Mrs. Ethel Willis and Henry S. Townsend in connection with the slaying of the woman's husband, Sheriff Sam D. Willis, was set late today for Thursday after a grand jury had indicted the couple on a charge of murder. The trial date was set by Judge Milledge L. Bonham in Circuit Court after he had denied a motion by defense counsel to postpone it until Monday.

Sheriff Willis, a war veteran, was mysteriously slain near his garage late on the night of June 11. Shortly afterward Townsend, who was his comrade in France and later his chief deputy, was arrested. A few days later Mrs. Willis also was taken into custody.

Sixteen Bootleggers Crowds Easton's Jail

Special to The Washington Post.
Easton, Md., Aug. 22.—The Easton jail is being taxed to its capacity with Federal prisoners brought here from Baltimore charged with bootlegging. Twelve white and four colored.

Sheriff Thomas J. Faulkner said that while in his charge the prisoners will be kept locked up.

CAPITAL GUARDSMEN TO KEEP SHELL CASE

Special to The Washington Post.
Hampton, Va., Aug. 22.—Capt. Robert C. Daly, of Battery C, 260th Anti-aircraft National Guard Battalion, of the District of Columbia, this afternoon received orders from Maj. Walter W. Burns, commander of the battalion, to preserve the shell case of the first anti-aircraft 3-inch shell fired by his battery.

The shell was fired Thursday and was the first shot by any of the gun crews. Battery C is to have an inscription engraved on the shell case and take it to Washington, where it is to be placed in the battalion museum at the 26th Army as a part of the permanent history of the organization.

Lieut. Charles M. Cook had charge of the gun section which fired the shot. Sgt. Muskhinsky was gun commander and Corporal Wood was gun pointer.

Tonight, at 8:30 o'clock, all batteries of the organization will start firing a trial shot problem. The trial will be assisted by Battery A, which will throw searchlight beams on the burst of the first shell fired. Firing then will be directed at the smoke clouds left by this first burst.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.

134 N. Patrick St., Alexandria, Va.

With the entire length of King street decorated with colored lights, flags and bunting, the city is ready to welcome the visiting delegates to the forty-first annual convention of the Virginia State Firemen's Association. The vanguard of the visitors, consisting of the companies from Harrisonburg and Clifton Forge, already have arrived and have gone into camp in tents on the high school grounds. Every train is being met and cars are being held for the 3,500 persons expected to attend the convention. They come not only from Virginia, but from Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and the District of Columbia, a number of the out-of-town companies having arranged to reach here for the parade which will be held Thursday, and the contests and athletic events Friday.

City Manager Paul Morton is preparing special traffic regulations for the day of the parade, and Mrs. John Travers, president of the women's auxiliary, assisted by other members, have established registration headquarters in the Chamber of Commerce rooms. No. 3, 3,500 persons expected to attend the convention. They come not only from Virginia, but from Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and the District of Columbia, a number of the out-of-town companies having arranged to reach here for the parade which will be held Thursday, and the contests and athletic events Friday.

In addition to the other attractions, a baseball game will be played at 4 o'clock this afternoon in Drednought Park between Engine Company No. 3 of Alexandria, and the District of Columbia Fire Department, and on Thursday afternoon Company 4 will play the St. Mary's Celtics Team.

A bronze cross has been placed on the wall of the Washington Street Methodist Church, South, bearing the inscription, "In Memory of My Son, Kenneth W. Ogdén."

In accepting the tablet in the name of the church Sunday, the Rev. W. B. Hammond, pastor, paid a tribute to the life and character of Col. Ogdén, who at the time of his death two years ago was a member of the church. Col. Ogdén was a prominent real estate man. He joined the Southern Methodist Church at the age of 11. For many years he had been a member of the choir and a leading spirit in that as well as many other organizations of the city.

Mary Ferguson, colored, arrested Sunday by Sgt. Sims on a charge of violating the prohibition law, was fined $250 and costs and sentenced to three months in jail by Justice W. S. Snow in police court yesterday. When arrested the woman was carrying a suitcase containing several half-gallon jars of corn whiskey.

A gasoline tank belonging to R. E. Horgan at Gibson and Albemarle streets was damaged to the extent of $200 when struck yesterday by an automobile driven by Harry Dagner, of Bashford lane. Dagner was tried in police court and fined $15 on a charge of violating the traffic regulations.

The pouring of concrete for the roof of the memorial hall of the George Washington Masonic National Memorial Temple, which was scheduled to be started last night, has been postponed until tomorrow on account of inspection work under way.

This work, when completed, will constitute the largest single slab of concrete roofing in the world, according to the contractors and architects. The pouring will require practically an entire week.

Mark Rudolph Norris, 82 years old, died Sunday at his home, 8 Rosemont avenue, in Georgetown, after an illness of two months. Funeral services will be held at the home at 3 o'clock this afternoon, conducted by the Rev. E. M. Delaney, pastor of the St. John's Episcopal Church. Besides his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Norris, he is survived by three sons and four daughters. Mr. Norris, of Washington; J. Ellis Norris, of Havana, Cuba; S. Elmer Norris, of this city, and Mrs. Charles R. Humphreys, Mrs. Lee, Mrs. George Harrington and Miss Elena Norris, of Alexandria, and one brother, William Norris, of Washington.

Mr. Norris was honorary life president of the Friendship Veterans' Fire Association and was an organizer and charter member of Oriental Lodge No. 6, Knights of Pythias, which was organized on December 12, 1868.

Funeral services will be held at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Funeral Home for Mrs. Harriet C. Padgett, widow of E. E. Padgett of this city, who died on Saturday at her home at 3601 Cameron street. The services will be conducted by the Rev. Edgar Carpenter, rector of Christ Church. Mrs. Padgett died Sunday at her home at 3601 Thirtieth street, Washington.

SCHLEE PLANE OFF ON RECORD EFFORT TO ENCIRCLE GLOBE

Detroit Oil Man and His Pilot Fly to New York on Way to Harbor Grace.

OLD GLORY MAY BEGIN
FLIGHT TO ROME TODAY

Redfern Unable to Start His Hop for South America, as He Intended.

Curtis Field, N. Y., Aug. 22 (A.P.).—The pride of Detroit, the Stinson monoplane, in which Edward F. Schlee and William Brock, of Detroit, plan to make a round-the-world trip, landed here at 5:40 o'clock Eastern daylight time this afternoon.

East winds held the Rome-bound monoplane Old Glory in its hangar tonight, but it was predicted that the weather would reverse itself tomorrow, giving a favorable west wind for the start.

A west wind is necessary to lift the heavily loaded plane into the air from the Roosevelt Field runway and to speed it on its course after it gets aloft.

James H. Kimball, of the Weather Bureau, predicted that westerly winds will prevail all along the New York-Rome course tomorrow and that while there will be considerable fog and some rain over the first half of the route, there will be fair weather and good visibility from midocean on.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 22 (A.P.).—Edward F. Schlee, president of the Wayco Oil Corporation, and his pilot, William Brock, who will attempt to break the globe-encircling record, hopped off from Ford airport at 10 o'clock this morning for Curtis Field, Long Island, en route to Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, their official starting point.

The take-off was made only two weeks after Schlee conceived the idea of attempting to break the record of 28 days 14 hours and 30 minutes established last year by Edward S. Evans, Detroit manufacturer, and Linton Wells, newspaper man, Evans and Wells made the journey by rail, steamer and airplane. Schlee declared that the idea first occurred to him last June while he was on a board of commerce cruise.

Brock was insured to begin preparations for the flight, and arrangements were made for the placing of supplies along the route after he returned from this trip.

In Reliability Tour.

Schlee's plane, a Stinson-Detroit monoplane, was piloted by Eddie Stinson, first-place winner in the recent national air tour. Reconditioned and christened Pride of Detroit, the plane is painted yellow with red trimmings and bears the name Wayco and the number NC687.

The plane is to leave New York for Harbor Grace Tuesday and weather permitting hop from the latter place for London Wednesday.

Redfern Again Delayed.

Brunswick, Ga., Aug. 22 (A.P.).—Paul Redfern will not take off tomorrow morning on his projected non-stop flight to Brazil. Paul V. Varner, chairman of the flight committee, announced this morning on receipt of weather reports which showed a tropical storm apparently moving across the northern leg of the 4,600-mile route. Redfern previously had said he would hop off tomorrow morning.

The special weather report issued daily for the Redfern flight information read:

"Tropical disturbance of moderate intensity central about latitude 22, longitude 65, apparently moving west-northwest. Extreme caution advised east of the Bahamas during the next 24 hours."

An Open Letter to Theatergoers of Washington!

With the attention of the entire world focused on the Western coast due to the intrepid fliers who braved the perils of the Pacific Ocean, the theater-going public have had little time to think of their amusement welfare.

This week marks the opening of the new fall season at Loew's Columbia Theater and, for the opening attraction, what greater picture could we inaugurate our new season with than "The Way of All Flesh," starring the greatest character actor on the screen today—Emil Jannings.

"The Way of All Flesh," now in its tenth week in New York City, has broken every existing record. The same record-breaking business prevails in Chicago, Los Angeles, Boston and Detroit.

WASHINGTON WILL BE NO EXCEPTION. Long waiting lines of eager motion picture theater fans have responded nobly and acclaimed the presentation of this picture at Loew's Columbia the finest picture they have ever seen.

The Washington critics all agree that no finer motion picture has ever been produced. To miss it will mean that you have lost an opportunity to see a "REAL MOTION PICTURE GEM."

I am proud to be the manager of a theater presenting so fine a production as "The Way of All Flesh" and so great a star as Emil Jannings.

I respectfully urge every Washingtonian to see this glorious thrilling drama of human life. Respectfully yours,

MARK GATES,
Manager Loew's Columbia Theater.

P. S.—Performance continuous from 10:30 a. m. to 11 p. m. The same usual prices—no advance. And you'll hear Leon Brussloff's Synco-Columbians.

MRS. CHAPLIN GETS CHILDREN AND $625,000 SETTLEMENT costs and $1,000 a month for the support, maintenance and education of the children for a period of five years pending setting up of the trust fund.

Mrs. Chaplin will receive $375,000 of the total award at once in cash, reliable reports said, the remainder to be paid her over a period of three years, as follows:

On September 1, 1928, $100,000; on September 1, 1929, $100,000, and on September 1, 1930, the balance of $50,000.

Within fifteen seconds after Judge Querin had completed reading a temporary ruling barring certain testimony, McMurray had announced reaching of the settlement and Mrs. Chaplin was on her way to the stars.

Rapidly and with finality she answered the questions which McMurray put to her.

Neglect of herself and the children, absence from home at night and cruelty which forced her to leave the film comedian were the burden of her testimony.

Not a word was mentioned of the sensational charges which she hurled at the screen star in her divorce complaint. Almost forgotten in the hectic hour's court session were the references made to motion-picture actresses with which the plaintiff wife declared Chaplin had been unduly familiar.

Gavin McNab, chief of Chaplin's quintet of legal advisers, dramatically came to the comedian's defense in a two-minute display of oratory.

He painted Chaplin as a dutiful husband and father and as a man whose purse was the object of attack.

"Who steals my purse steals trash," McNab quoted from Shakespeare in drawing a parallel, "but he who robs me of my good name takes that which no enricheth him but makes me poor indeed."

Mrs. Chaplin came into court with her mother, Mrs. Lillian Spicer.

She was smartly attired in black silk, dark bob-haired style hat and a big white fur cloak.

The plaintiff testified that she left her husband on advice of physicians when her condition was "hysterical because of cruelty." During the four months she remained away from him, Chaplin called on him about once a week. During that time he took her to dinner twice.

"Did he take you out at all?" McMurray asked.

"Very seldom and then he would say that he was taking me out for appearances sake only. He used to say that to me all the time, even before I left him."

She testified of a month's trip to Coronado, near San Diego, during which Chaplin did not visit her. She remained on Santa Catalina Island for a month and no calls came from the comedian. Then she told of the trip to Honolulu which preceded the final break of the party of guests which Chaplin demanded she dismiss and of her leaving for her grandparents' home.

Two girl friends and her mother followed her to the stand. Only a few words came from each of a corroborative nature.

Judge Querin then announced he would grant the decree of divorce and a ten-minute recess during which he would examine the property agreement. The settlement terms were read and the court reconvened and the decree formally entered.

traffics. Several persons arrested were released.

A strong contingent of police remained on guard in the neighborhood of the consulate.

Buenos Aires (Tuesday), Aug. 23 (A.P.).—A crowd gathered in front of a newspaper office on the Avenida de Mayo and started a demonstration along the thoroughfare as soon as news of the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti was posted. It began stoning United States commercial houses. The police made every effort to break up the demonstration, but reinforcements had to be called out.

The stoppage of work through Argentina as a protest of labor against the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti was accompanied by a number of minor disorders, including the burning of a street car in the suburb of Avellaneda.

Police today by a group of men after the crew and passengers were compelled to abandon it.

The newspaper critics displayed in big letters on its front page the caption, "There Is No Hope Now."

London, Aug. 22 (A.P.).—Police guards were maintained throughout the day and tonight at the American Embassy, Hyde Park and other points in readiness for any possible Sacco-Vanzetti demonstration. Several hundred persons, largely women, gathered in Hyde Park tonight in an informal demonstration, at which it was announced that if the Italians were executed a mass demonstration would be held to the U. S. C. A. Hotel here today.

The woman apparently was about 60 years of age.

An examination of Mrs. Hamilton's room after her death revealed that letters addressed to Mrs. Lily Hamilton at the Stryker Apartments, this city, and a bank book from a local bank, No. 4, were found as to her Washington address.

The name of Mrs. L. Hamilton does not appear in the city directory or telephone book.

Fuertes, Naturalist,
Is Killed by a Train

Unadilla, N. Y., Aug. 22 (A.P.).—Louis Agassiz Fuertes, teacher, naturalist and artist, was instantly killed and his wife injured today when their roadster was hit by a train at Potter's Crossing, near here.

Prof. Fuertes was the author of several books on birds, and executed the bird habitat groups in the American Museum of Natural History, New York, and in the New York State Museum at Albany. He was an instructor at Cornell University, from which he was graduated in 1897. He was 53 years of age and was born in Ithaca.

At the Oneonta Hospital, to which Mrs. Fuertes was taken, it was said her injuries were not serious.

"Drive Legion From Paris."
(Special Cable Dispatch.)

Paris, Aug. 22.—"If Sacco and Vanzetti die we will march on the American Embassy tonight, regardless of the police," the Communist leaders advised their followers late tonight. The police do not conceal their fear of reprisals, and the huge forces guarding the embassy and consulate will be increased tomorrow, while additional squads have been sent to protect the American Legion headquarters, in Rue Victor Emile, where an attack was planned tomorrow night by Communist unions.

"We are going to drive these Yankee troops and their convention out of town," the newspaper Humanite boasts.

Parade in Mexico City.

Mexico City, Aug. 22 (A.P.).—About 500 Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers paraded in the business section of Mexico City and staged an orderly demonstration in front of the United States consulate general and the U.S. Customs.

EBERLE TESTS LAWYERS' PROPOSALS FOR LONG AIR TRIPS

Navy Will Curtail Use of Land Airplanes, Admiral Predicts.

NEED SHOWN IN RECENT ACCIDENTS, HE STATES

Amphibian Gear Asked for Aeros to Be Used on Carriers.

Prediction that the Navy will abolish land planes for long flights over water and that Congress will enact legislation prohibiting long distance flights except under rigid inspection conditions was made yesterday by Admiral Edward W. Eberle, acting Secretary of the Navy.

Admiral Eberle said while he desired to see progress in aviation, that accidents are harmful to it, and that certain of those occurring recently required need for more preparation before long flights are made.

Declaring that long distance flights over water in planes equipped for water landings are hazardous and should be restricted, he explained that planes with pontoons or other means of floating will keep aloft for a reasonable length of time but that a land plane with little flotation, sinks when its wings are saturated.

Amphibians to Be Used.

Asserting he never would lose an opportunity to have seaplanes for the Navy, he recalled that the first step toward the use of land planes called for the request for designs for amphibian gear on planes to be used on the new aircraft carriers.

He said that France already had taken steps for regulation of long distance flying following the Nungesser-Collie disaster.

The cost of the search for the missing Dole fliers to the Navy up to Thursday, when it was estimated at $90,000 by naval statisticians. This cost, chiefly for fuel, is in excess of regular operating expenses for the 42 vessels engaged in the search.

Laborites Will Refuse
Support for Valera

Dublin, Irish Free State, Aug. 22 (A.P.).—Tom Johnson, parliamentary leader of the Labor party, in a letter to the Dublin Labor party, said that the Laborites will not support Eamon de Valera for president of the Free State executive council in case the present government is ousted.

This decision was taken a week ago, he says, on the ground that to do so would nullify labor's attempt to bridge the gap between the two severely contending sections of Irish politics, the Cumann na nGaedhele, headed by William T. Cosgrave, who is now president of the council, and the Fianna Fail party, headed by De Valera.

Madrid, Aug. 22 (A.P.).—The Spanish government has accepted the gift of a huge statue of Columbus, made by the American people, to be placed in the Plaza de Colon.

The statue, standing at Potos, the site of the discovery of gold, was what was to be his voyage of discovery. A series of festivities is being held for the dedication of the monument some time in October.

Mrs. Payne Whitney, of New York, designed the statue, which was chiseled by Mrs. Charles Huntington, an American sculptress, whose husband has taken a leading part in the movement to make Spain better known to Americans and make America better known to Spaniards.

Two Hurt in Motorcycle Crash.

Two men, one a policeman, were thrown to the street and injured yesterday when the motorcycle they were riding burst a tire at Delaware avenue and ran into a building.

Victor P. Kew, of the Tenth Precinct, who was riding tandem, received a fractured left knee and bruises on his body. Albert Miller, 500 M street, southeast, operator of the motorcycle, was cut and bruised. The men were treated at Providence Hospital.

Pile Led Rescuers.

Ashley made his exit yesterday from the famous cave, which spreads out under three States, and from which marauding bands of Cherokee Indians used to make their sallies against white settlers, at a point in Castle Rock Gulch, near the abandoned City mine, 8 miles from the mouth of the cave which he entered on Sunday morning to explore a new cavern.

His friends said he had left word that if he was not out by Tuesday morning to start search for him.

Pile said today that when Ashley came down the mountain from the place where he said he dug himself out, he passed within a short distance of the main entry to the cave at which the searching party were gathered. He did not stop to look at those who were supposedly trying to save his life, Pile added, while the attitude of people there was not that of those witnessing "the return of a dear friend from the dead."

Other evidence would also be included in his official report, he indicated.

Shell Mound, Tenn., Aug. 22 (A.P.).—Greatly refreshed after a night's rest, L. S. Ashley, geologist and explorer, who Sunday morning dug his way out of Nick-a-Jack cave, seemed little the worse today for his six days' stay in the cavern. He said his first effort would be to relocate the new entrance to the cave through which he escaped, some 8 miles from the point where he entered the cavern. He appeared confident that he would find it, although he said he was so dazed at the time of his escape that landmarks made little impression upon his exhausted faculties.

EXPLORE'S STORY OF BEING TRAPPED IN CAVE IS DENIED

State Mine Inspector Tells Governor It Is a Fraud to Obtain Highway.

MEN IN RESCUE CREWS
DECLARED IN THE PLOT

Ashley Did Not Remain in the Cavern 6 Days as He Said,
It Is Charged.

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 22 (A.P.).—O. P. Pile, State mine inspector, today reported officially to Gov. Austin Peay that Lawrence Ashley's disappearance in Nick-a-Jack Cave near Shellmound, Tenn., was a "fraud perpetrated for the purpose of securing a State highway by the cave."

Mr. Pile's statement charged that Ashley and other inhabitants of the section, including members of the rescue crews which returned with "fabulous stories of wonderful halls in a 6-mile-long cave, were in the plot the secretary proposed of which was to give the cave publicity and to attract tourists.

The cave is not more than 2 miles in length, the statement said, is shallow and the road has fallen in places, making it unattractive to tourists.

Ashley, Pile charged, did not stay in the cave and did not reappear until Sunday. Mr. Pile said he took a crew of 50 miners into the cave to search it and left one stationed at the door.

The party had not gone far, he said, when it was recalled to see Ashley appear from the woods and hurry off toward home without walking toward those at the cave mouth.

No Mud on His Clothing.

The geologist, who told of having been cut off by a rock slide and after wandering alone in the cave and digging his way out, showed no signs of mud on his clothes and boots, Pile asserted, and carried a heavy pack, as he walked rapidly away.

Charge Called Ridiculous.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Aug. 22 (A.P.).—"I don't care to make any reply to this ridiculous statement at this time," Lawrence Ashley said today, called by long distance telephone and informed of charges by O. P. Pile, State mine inspector, that his cave entry was a hoax. "I won't enter into a newspaper controversy with him but will take more direct steps to answer him."

He said he saw what his supporters in the way of so-called proof before making any effort to reply to him.

Ashley asked the Chattanooga News to send a reporter to Shell Mound and promised to guide him to the exit where he had been cut off.

He said he was on the side of Sand Mountain.

Pile, who was sent to the cave by Gov. Peay to aid in the search for Ashley, had said previously he would report to the governor that there was no evidence to show that Ashley had been cut off by a rock slide.

Ship Can Be "Rung Up" By New Radio Device

(Special Cable Dispatch.)

London, Aug. 22.—An installation by which ships can be "rung up" by radio when their wireless operators are off duty is now being fitted on 200 British ships, it was learned today.

The latest application of radio to the safety of life at sea is called the Marconi auto alarm apparatus and sets bells ringing in various parts of a ship. When a vessel is in distress it thus can attract the attention of any ships in the vicinity which do not carry a relief operator's distress call and a message is sent out.

The alarm signal consists of a series of twelve dashes sent in one-minute durations, each dash lasting four seconds, with a one-second interval between each two, and the alarm operates on the termination of the third consecutive dash received.

EASTERN RAIL MERGER
AGAIN TO BE CONSIDERED

Executives Soon to Meet With Loree, Sponsor of Fifth Trunk Line.

PENNSYLVANIA BACKS HIM

New York, Aug. 22 (A.P.).—Meetings of high executives of the four Eastern trunk line railroads, and L. F. Loree, sponsor of a fifth trunk line, will be resumed this fall, it was learned here today, to reconsider the Eastern consolidation plan.

They will begin about the middle of next month, and the initiative likely will be taken by the Pennsylvania, which has come to the aid of the high water. Sheriff L. A. Clayton declared.

Circuit court is scheduled to open there today, and a grand jury will be needed especially to investigate alleged irregularities regarding the issuance of court script.

STARS TRAIL BOY, 19, IN NATIONAL AMATEUR; GUY STANDIFER'S 75 PUTS HIM AMONG LEADERS

Detroit Beats Nationals, 4-2, 7-3

Harrismen Get Five Hits Off Gibson in First.

Homers Decide 2nd Game—Heilmann Stars at Bat.

By FRANK H. YOUNG (Staff Correspondent of The Post.)

Detroit, Aug. 22.—But for the fact that the White Sox defeated the Athletics, our Nationals tonight would be comfortably resting in the fourth place berth, for they absorbed their sixth and seventh straight defeats this afternoon when they were trounced by the Tigers twice in the same place, 4 to 2 and 7 to 3.

There is a little saying that a "quitter never wins a winner never quits," and the Bengals certainly refused to give up the fight today. In the opening game, in which Irving Hadley opposed George Gibson, the Nats overcame a 2-run lead to knot the string in the fifth, whereupon the home gang simply put on a little more speed and stepped out again.

Walter Johnson and Rip Collins were the mound starters in the second, and although the latter was forced to retire because of the rough treatment given him, which led the Nats to assume a 3-to-1 lead, Smith stepped in and checked the onslaught, while his mates once more staged an uphill fight to victory.

Home runs by Johnson, Marky McManus and Harry Heilmann featured the nightcap battle, each of which was followed by a shower of straw hats which must have sent most of the crowd home bare-headed.

Although the whole Tiger team has been playing heads-up ball, Harry Heilmann has been the horn in the hide of all of the Washington flingers. His record in the previous three games was ten hits, including a homer, triple and double, and fourteen trips up, while he was credited with three for three, one a two-sacker, in the first game, and a homer in three times up in the nightcap.

Gibson was complete master of the Nats in the opening game, and but for a two-base error by Fothergill would have turned in a shutout. The miff came in the fifth and enabled the Harrismen to knot the count at 2-1.

Bluege and Hadley were on the sacks as a result of singles, the error—a drive at the chubby left fielder—letting Blue register and putting Hadley on third so that he could tally on Rice's infield out.

Gibson granted but three other hits, all in different innings. One was a sac's wasted double with two down in the first, another was Gossin's opening blow in the sixth, Harris later hitting into a double play, while Rice was credited with the other with one dead in the ninth. After Harris hoisted out, Bluege coaxed a pass, but, with the tying runs on the sacks, Reeves' best was a grasser to McManus.

Hadley pitched a fair game, but the Tigers were fortunate in being able to cash in on most of their bingles. Warner's opening triple, singles by Blue and Heilmann, and a pass scored one of the home team's runs in the opener and had

Dempsey Goes To Camp for Training

Challenger Pleased With $2,000,000 Layout.

Has Month to Get Ready for Fight for Title.

By FRANK H. YOUNG (Staff Correspondent of The Post.)

CHICAGO, Aug. 22 (A.P.).—Jack Dempsey moved bag and baggage to the quiet and expansive confines of the Lincoln Fields race course today to settle down to the business of preparation in his quest of regaining the world's heavyweight championship from Gene Tunney in their battle at Soldiers Field September 22.

By moving out to the race course training camp, Dempsey will have just a month to the day to whip himself into shape for the battle, for it is just a month from tonight that Dempsey and the champion will whale away at each other in the great Memorial Stadium before some 160,000 spectators.

Dempsey did not work today, but he is shaking off his fatigue in the living quarters at the clubhouse. He will occupy the suite of Col. Matt J. Winn, general manager of the track, located on the third floor of the clubhouse. His spar boys will be housed in the jockeys' quarters.

The outdoor ring has been erected on the lawn between the clubhouse and rail of the track, and when rain interferes Dempsey will work in a ring built in the grandstand.

The former world's champion intends to start light training tomorrow, with the gates closed to the public. Light training in Dempsey's case means several miles of road work, doing a bit of light calisthenics in the afternoon and indulging in some every-guy-for-himself pinchole games with Jerry Ludwigs, his pint-size trainer, and other camp attendants.

The sparring mates that Dempsey will hammer around the place when he settles down to hard work, are scheduled to start arriving tomorrow. Dave Shade is coming from New York; Martin Burke is en route from New Orleans; Jack McAuliffe, the Detroit heavyweight; My Sullivan, of St. Paul, and others will be available the latter part of the week when Dempsey may decide to put on the gloves.

Dempsey was as frisky as a school boy on his inspection of the $2,000,000 racing plant. He was particularly pleased with the park-like surroundings, and the freshness of the place. The St. Louis Cardinals defeating the Phillies by a score of 1 to 0. Ulrich only gave up four hits, and Hafeys was the only Cardinal to pass second base. The victory was Hafeys' twentieth of the season.

Helen Wills Is Easy Victor; No Upsets in Women's Meet

California Star Drops Only One Game in Two Sets—Mrs. Godfree Withdraws From Tourney.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 22 (A.P.).—Flashing the brilliant brand of tennis that has carried her along in an unbroken stretch of victory so far this season, Miss Helen Wills started impressively today her battle to regain the American women's tennis championship.

Making her first appearance in the national tournament since she ended her three-year reign in 1925, Miss Wills overthrew Miss Josephine Crookshank, California junior, 6-0, 6-1, in the first round. Except for a momentary streak of error-making that cost her the fourth game of the second set, "Helen the First" was in complete command, dazzling her young opponent with a versatile attack and clearly demonstrating why she is a top-heavy favorite to win back the title now held by Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory.

Except for the unexpected withdrawal of Mrs. Kitty McKane Godfree, captain of the invading British team, because of illness, the first round of the fourth national championship developed no upsets and few thrills. Six other British contenders advanced without difficulty, as did Miss Ken Bouman, the hard-driving young Dutch champion, and such American stars as Mrs. Mallory, Miss Helen Jacobs, Miss Eleanor Goss, Miss Penelope Anderson, and Mrs. Charlotte Hosmer Chapin.

Mrs. Godfree retired from the singles today on the advice of her physician, but will play in the doubles, starting with Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory.

Nats Acquire Eddie Onslow, Rochester First Baseman

Newcomer Will Let McNeely Go Back to Field—Thurston Expected to Face Bengals Today.

By FRANK H. YOUNG (Staff Correspondent of The Post.)

DETROIT, Aug. 22.—The Nationals have purchased the services of First Baseman Eddie Onslow, of the Rochester Internationalists, for use while Joe Judge is shaking off his fatigue.

Word has been telegraphed to the substitute first sacker to report to the Nationals at once.

As was exclusively stated in Monday's Post, Harris has sent an S O S call for another outfielder, and either Ollie Tucker or Bill Lamar was expected to be sent him. Griffith advised Boss Bucky this morning, however, that he would have to worry along with the material he has on hand.

The Minneapolis Club, it seems, is not willing to let Onslow go, as the player is hitting like a "house afire," while Griffith is not willing to forgive Lamar for trying to hold him up at a time when the Nats needed the player.

MacKinnon, like the father who, while spanking his son, says: "This hurts me more than it does you," the Nats owner has decided to let the player's punishment originally meted out to Lamar, even though doing so makes the Nationals suffer.

Griffith is looking elsewhere for a fly-hawk, however, and may be able to dig one up shortly. Of course Onslow will release McNeely for outfield utility duties.

FIVE MEN, ACCUSED OF A KIDNAPING GIRL, HEAR FATE TODAY

Death Penalty May Follow as Result of Verdict in Oxon
Hill Crime.

THREE JUDGES PRESIDE AT UPPER MARLBORO

Citizens of Prince Georges County Congratulated for Faith in Courts.

The fate of the five negroes charged with a capital offense against a Washington woman in what the prosecution termed "the bloody battle of Oxon Hill," will be known this morning.

Their trial yesterday in the Circuit Court at Upper Marlboro lasted a little more than six hours, after which they were hurried back to the jail at Baltimore, many miles from the throng of spectators who had crowded the courtroom to glare at them while they admitted taking part in the crime.

The three judges, W. Mitchell Diggs, W. H. Mattingly and W. M. Loker, who heard the case, announced at the close of the session that the men are to be brought back to the court this morning when the verdict will be given.

The men were indicted on charges of assault with intent to kill and two offenses against Miss Alberta Rice, 22 years old, 1422 N street northwest. The assault took place at Oxon Hill, July 20. Miss Rice, with John Buckler, 3346 Prospect avenue, parked their car on the road when a group of colored men came along and, with rocks and stones, beat the young couple nearly into insensibility.

The defendants are Herman Proctor, 22, Harry Proctor, 17, Alfred Summ, 20, Calvin Ridley, 19, and Richard Brown, 21. They all do odd jobs for farmers around Oxon Hill.

The court adjourned after the closing arguments of State's Attorney Frank Parran and his assistant, Wilson Ryan, who characterized the case as the most atrocious in the history of Prince Georges County. Ryan told the judges that there is no doubt but that Herman Proctor and Alfred Summ "deserve" the death penalty. Aside from that there was no direct appeal by the prosecution for the death penalty.

"No crime in my memory," Parran declared, "has so stirred the people of our county. The good citizens who live here are to be congratulated for allowing these men to be brought to trial—they are to be congratulated for their trust in the courts and for the patience."

"This trial is in itself evidence of their faith in the courts and their faith that justice will be done."

Says No Case Against Three.

John Mudd, the defense attorney and a brother of the late Representative Sydney Mudd, while admitting the horror of the crime, contended that no case had been made against Ridley, Brown or Herman Proctor. He made little reference to the other two, who, while pleading not guilty, testified that they had done virtually all that the prosecution charged them with.

The men were all identified in court by Buckler, Miss Rice and two of the men, by William Goodacre, of 1514 Connecticut avenue, who happened to come along in time to drive three of the assailants to the police station.

Miss Rice, slender, dressed in black and wearing dark glasses, left the witness stand to walk down to the bench where the men were sitting and identify them one by one, relating just the part each had taken in the struggle.

The clothes worn by Miss Rice were shown to the judges. Bloody and torn, they were true witnesses of the atrocity. Miss Rice also exhibited the scar on her forehead, where the first rock thrown had hit her and stunned her.

Little Conflict in Testimony.

There was little conflict in testimony. The men said that they had been driven from their homes the night of July 20, bound for Oxon Hill, where they were to be purchased some whiskey. Encountering the parked car, they drove alongside and warned the occupants that they had better move along. They continued and then returned "to get a match."

An argument, arising, it was said, when the men used profanity, developed into a battle with the negroes throwing rocks. Buckler, with one arm around Miss Rice, fought savagely, but was outnumbered. Finally, one of the men—Miss Rice said it was Summ—dragged the woman from the car.

At this stage Goodacre drove up and three men fled. In other testimony, to be Summ and Herman Proctor, fought with him. Finally Goodacre and Buckler drove the men into the woods and the three returned to the city in Goodacre's car.

Patrolman Robert Manning, of the Eleventh Police Precinct, who lives near Oxon Hill, testified that shortly after the assault he visited Miss Rice at the hospital, obtained from her a minute description of her assailants and then went to the homes of the five defendants, in company with Deputy Sheriff Clinton Perrygo as arresting officer, and took the men into custody.

Scattered throughout the crowd were twenty plain-clothes policemen, but they found little to do.

PONY RACES WILL OPEN ROCKVILLE FAIR TODAY

More Than One Hundred Entries Have Been Made by Children.

PRIZES IN ALL EVENTS

A program of pony races and a pony show will be the feature of Children's Day at the opening of the Rockville Fair today.

According to J. C. Christopher, superintendent of the races, more than a hundred entries have been received to date, with a fair prospect of a number of post entries. Performance and manners will count 40 per cent, conformation and general appearance, 50 per cent, and equipment, 10 per cent.

It is the aim of the committee in charge to make this event the best pony show ever staged at the fair grounds, and the young equestrians from Rockville and neighboring towns in Montgomery County have been grooming their ponies for the event.

Slack Nicholson on Tinkle and Joe Starkey on his pony rex, are expected to give a thriller with their vehemence in the opening races. Both are excellent riders and they have been training their ponies along circus lines for weeks in anticipation of the races.

Six pony races have been scheduled for the day, including a quarter-mile hurdle race for ponies from 44 to 56 inches. Six classes will be shown as follows:

Class 1—Ponies under 36 inches, rider under 10 years; best pony under saddle. Class 2—Ponies under 40 inches, rider under 10 years; best pony under saddle. Class 3—Ponies under 44 inches, rider under 11 years; best pony under saddle; best pony in harness to appropriate vehicle; best pair of ponies in harness to vehicle. Class 4—Ponies under 48 inches, rider under 14 years; best pony under saddle; best pony in harness to appropriate vehicle; best pair of ponies in harness to vehicle. Class 5—Ponies under 52 inches, rider under 15 years; best pony in harness to appropriate vehicle; best pair of ponies in harness to vehicle. Class 6—Ponies under 56 inches, rider under 18 years; best pony under saddle; best pony in harness to appropriate vehicle; best pair of ponies in harness to vehicle.

Ponies in classes 1 and 2 may be shown in class 3 in single and double harness. Cash prizes and ribbons will be given in all events.

ROUMANIANS ARRIVE ON "GOOD WILL" TOUR

25 Educators, Public Men and Students Will Be Entertained.

Twenty-five prominent Roumanian educators, public men and students arrived last night at Washington to spend several days here on an official "good will" tour of the United States.

On leaving the Capital they expect to visit the industrial centers of the country to make an extensive survey of financial and business methods as well as the American educational system.

Among the party are Dr. Vladimir Danulesco, noted radiologist; Neagu Boreescu, inspector general of the public health service of Roumania; Dr. Adler and Col. Trajan Grigoresco, director of the Military School of Cernauti.

At 1 o'clock today the visitors will be welcomed to Washington by Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, regent of the Georgetown Foreign Service School, who will give a luncheon at the city center.

In the afternoon the Roumanian Minister, his countrymen will be the guests of members of the legation staff, who are arranging festivities. The last visit of Roumanian educators had much influence in cementing cordial relations internationally, and it is planned to encourage an annual exchange of visits between Roumania and the United States.

The committee appointed at a recent meeting at the Cosmos Club to entertain the visitors consists of Father Walsh, Prince Mihail Sturdza, counselor of the Roumanian legation; Dr. Cloyd H. Martin, president of George Washington University, and William W. Burke, corporation counsel of the District.

Hugh R. Wilson at Farley.

Hugh R. Wilson, American Minister to Switzerland, will head the American delegation to the third general conference on communications and transit, which opens at Geneva today. He will be assisted by Chauncey G. Parker, counsel for the Shipping Board, and Norman F. Titus, chief of the transportation division of the Commerce Department. The conference has been called by the League of Nations.

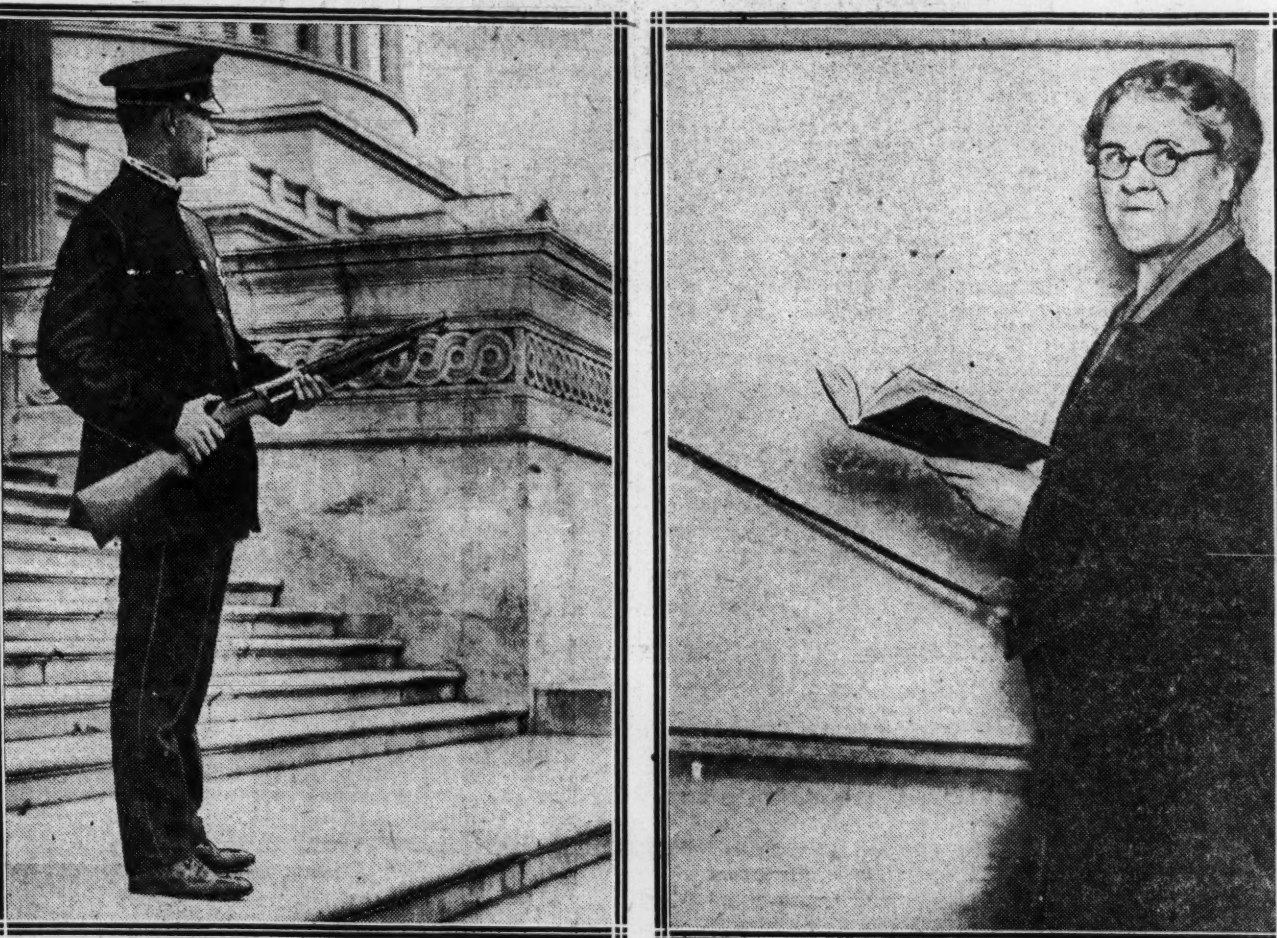

Man Hurt in Elevator.

While riding in an elevator yesterday in the McGill Building, 916 G street northwest, John S. Rich, 84 years old, of 606 F street northwest, accidentally saw his right arm through a small window in the rear of the elevator. He was treated at the office of a nearby physician for a cut hand.

CALLING MAN "LIAR" RESENTED BY JUDGE

Attorney Told Louisiana Avenue Is Place for Term Inciting Fight.

Chief Justice Walter I. McCoy cut short what promised to be a heated verbal tilt in circuit division of the District Supreme Court yesterday when he informed Henry M. Fowler, attorney for the Independent Taxi Owners Association, that the street and not the courtroom was the proper place to call a man a "liar."

Fred A. Malby, defendant in a suit dealing with the obtaining of a telephone number for the Diamond Taxi Cab Co., was arguing the suit when Fowler interrupted:

"Don't lie to the court, Mr. Malby. 'Hold on, Mr. Fowler. You can't call a man a liar in my court when he can't do anything,' censured Chief Justice McCoy. 'If you want to use that word you should go out on Louisiana avenue.'"

The attorney made no attempt to recall his statement and retorted to the chief justice: "He wouldn't do anything." The case was continued until Thursday.

Gallinger Hospital Again Is Quarantined

Gallinger Hospital, released from quarantine Friday, following discovery of a smallpox case there, was quarantined again yesterday when it was found that a patient had taken the disease.

The first case was that of an interne. The new patient is Arthur Robinson, colored, 78 years old, 66 F street southwest. He has the disease in a light form and is held not to be dangerously ill.

WITNESSES. Mrs. Mae Vanderford, whose husband is charged with the murder of Private Clarence Badgley, Annapolis marine, last night; and her brother, Private Charles M. Bennett, who police declare, struggled with Vanderford for the gun.

PARK BOARD TO OPPOSE RIVER POWER PROJECT

Grant to Present Commission's Views at War Department Hearing.

CITIZENS TO GIVE PLEAS

Protest of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission against the proposed hydroelectric power plant on the Potomac River involving dams at Chain Bridge, Great Falls and other points, will be presented by Lieut. Col. W. F. Dwyer, general chairman of the Potomac River Commission's hearing in the Interior Building, Thursday.

The Federation of Citizens Associations, which is opposed to the elimination of the beauties of the region involved and the Potomac River Corporation, which seeks permission for the hydroelectric project, also will be heard.

The latter corporation, with headquarters at Wilmington, Del., has filed application for a preliminary permit for the project on the Potomac and its tributaries in the District of Columbia, West Virginia, Virginia and Maryland. While the application will be acted on finally by the Federal Power Commission, following a hearing probably next month, the War Department hearing this week is to be conducted because its engineering division must make preliminary reports on all power development projects.

Thursday's meeting will follow a similar hearing at Harper's Ferry tomorrow, to obtain knowledge of the reaction of people of that region to the proposal. Maj. Brehon Somervell, local United States engineer, will preside at both hearings.

Police Say Autoist Drove Through Circle

Charged with driving an automobile through Grant Circle Park at 2 o'clock yesterday morning, Beckham Huff, colored, 21 years old, 2201 Second street northwest, was arrested after a fight between occupants of his car and motorcycle policeman Mihill, of the Tenth Precinct, who was aided by John Hutchison, of 6 Grant Circle. Huff, in addition to reckless driving, was charged with destroying shrubbery in his passage through the park.

Charles Emmett, a passenger in the Huff car, was charged with being drunk and assaulting Hutchison when he came to Mihill's aid. The car, a coupe, was going north on New Hampshire avenue.

Woman Found in Road Declares She Is Nurse

The woman who was found unconscious on the highway near Savage, Md., early yesterday and taken to Emergency Hospital by a passing motorist, identified herself later in the day as Mrs. F. Ruth Perkins, a trained nurse, of Baltimore Hospital, physician, who were told she had said she had swallowed poison, were unable to find traces of it.

Mrs. Perkins was sent to Gallinger Hospital and then to the House of Detention. No charges were placed against her. Policemen are trying to locate her relatives.

Five Motorists Fined On Traffic Charges

Judge John P. McMahon fined four motorists $10 each for speeding. They were James O'Kelly, 626 Q street northwest; Booker T. Brooks, 1304 Ninth street northwest; Ernest S. Portch, 1228 Third street northwest; and Frank H. Young, Baltimore, Md.

Body of Boy Sailor Is Taken From River

A grappling hook in the hands of Bernard Hicks, 427 O street southwest, brought the body of Millard Thorne, 16-year-old deckhand of the Army steamer Gen. Rucker, to the surface of the Potomac River yesterday. Thorne drowned Sunday in view of hundreds of persons when he attempted to leap from the dock to the steamer's deck.

Thorne's father and brothers watched the efforts of the police and others to locate the body. The boy lived in Broad Creek, Md., and had been in this city since July 1. He expected to spend the summer working on the boat, and return to his home in the fall.

Falls Through Trap Door

Falling through a trap door at 3233 M street northwest yesterday, Spillidin, 30 years old, proprietor of a lunch room at that address, fell through the basement. He landed on a pile of boxes, suffering internal injuries and rib fractures. Spillidin, whose condition was said to be serious, was taken to Emergency Hospital.

PUBLIC UTILITIES COMMISSION CONSIDERS TROLLEY COMPANIES MERGER

Opinion on Validity of Former Board's Bill May Be Asked.

CHILDRESS SAYS PUBLIC WANTS CONSOLIDATION

Believes Traction Firms Will Try to Unite Without Legislation.

The new Public Utilities Commission is reviewing another of the policies of its predecessor, in addition to that concerning operation of one-man cars. It is the official attitude to be taken toward the proposed street car merger.

Following failure of the companies to present a merger plan the old commission considered compulsory steps and asked a bill to impose penalties for failure to merge and grant rewards for acquiescence in the commission's merger suggestions. The bill was not reached for final action by Congress.

The present commission is considering a merger between the old Public Utilities Commission and the old Public Utilities Commission. The commission is considering a merger between the old Public Utilities Commission and the old Public Utilities Commission.

"The public undoubtedly favors merger," said Childress. "I think the traction corporations are aware of this and will try to merge without legislation. Voluntary merger is more to be desired than enforced amalgamation. I have reason to believe steps toward consolidation will be taken by the North American Co., thus eliminating the need for legislation."

Legislation forcing a merger would have to be provided with teeth, and my observation is that laws with teeth in them usually are held to be unconstitutional."

Girl, Held Vagrant, Is Cleared by Judge

An accusation of vagrancy by solicitor-at-law, James C. Macdonald, 23 years old, a blind newspaper girl, was dismissed in Police Court yesterday by Judge George H. Macdonald. Sgt. O. Lettermann, of the First Precinct, who arrested the girl Saturday, testified that he found her seated in front of a store on Seventh street northwest, with a newspaper in her hand. He said she was blind and her family was too poor to place her in a home.

Her investigation revealed that she had been ordered to stay in the outdoors by a physician and her family was too poor to place her in a home.
